

Nationwide Peace Demonstrations

The War Moratorium Day

By United Press International

The Vietnam moratorium—expected to be the greatest demonstration for peace in the history of the United States—began today.

From Congress to campus, millions of Americans demonstrated their displeasure with their nation's participation in the Vietnam war—a war which claimed nearly 40,000 American lives, but recently was in a ground-action lull.

The demonstration, begun as a campus project, spread to cities and towns, nonpolitical and nonstudent organizations, churches and the U.S. Congress.

The black arm bands protesting the war in Vietnam were worn by a few American troops while on combat patrol in the war zone today ... Story Page 44.

U.S. House members supporting the antiwar protest tried to hold an all-night session Tuesday night, but adjourned after four hours of debate on the war. After hearing various proposals for leaving South Vietnam, a quorum was called. The House adjourned.

Although President Nixon twice said he would in no way be affected by the demonstration, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew Tuesday called on leaders of the moratorium to repudiate Hanoi's support. North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong addressed a letter "to American friends" saying, "may your fall offensive succeed splendidly."

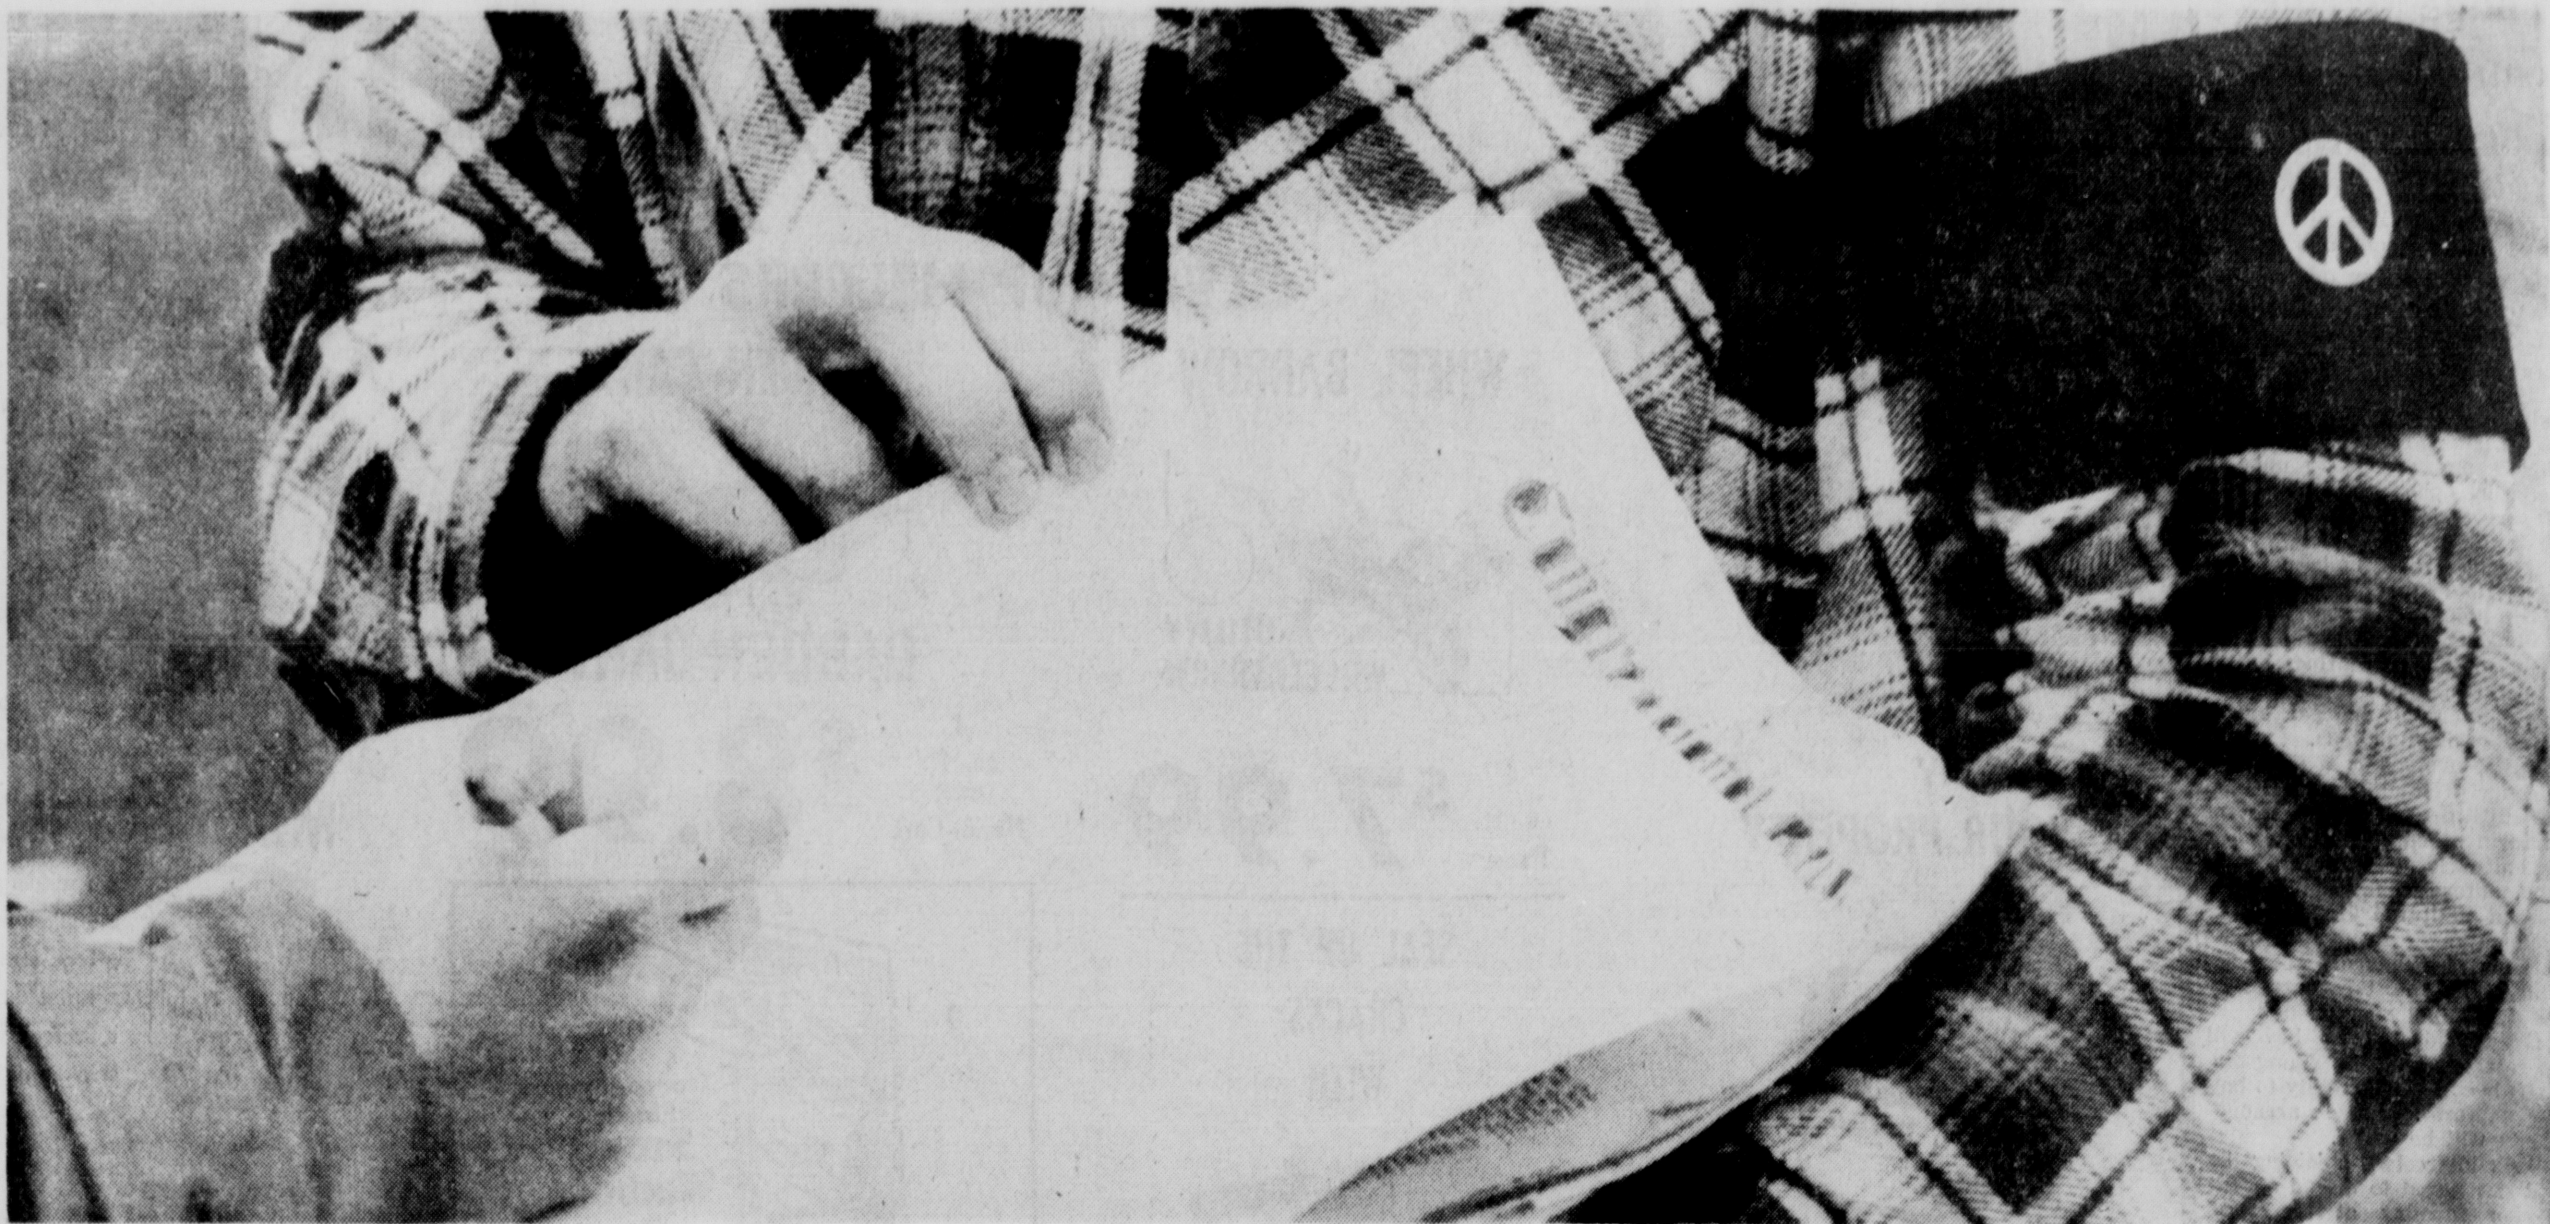

Agnew said the letter was "a shocking intrusion into the affairs of the American people by an enemy power."

The moratorium's leaders—Sam Brown and David Hawk—quickly replied, saying, "It is regrettable that the administration would seize this straw in an attempt to discredit the patriotism of those millions of Americans who sincerely desire peace."

From coast to coast, from North to South, protests were held—campus rallies, speeches, prayer meetings, parades, vigils—to demonstrate that the recent lull in antiwar activities was at an end, and that the antiwar movement felt Nixon had had plenty of time to end to war.

As if to drive the point home with special emphasis, moratorium leaders at Whittier College in California lighted a torch that will burn until the end of the war. Whittier is Nixon's alma mater.

Giant demonstrations got underway in New York City—where Mayor John V. Lindsay had declared today a day of observation of the moratorium and ordered flags flown at half-staff—and Chicago, where eight persons are on trial for inciting riots during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

NEW PALTZ

Student and faculty boycott of classes at the State University College in New Paltz was virtually complete this morning as Vietnam War Moratorium Day activities got underway.

Less than 200 students were scattered around the campus lawn an hour after the rally got underway at 10 a. m. Approximately the same number were on hand for the all-night vigil Tuesday.

Only a handful of the student body attended classes. A number of students left the campus away from classes met at the Academy Green and then fanned out at 10 a. m. to make house-to-house and store-to-store stops to explain to residents the purpose of the moratorium.

Twelve busloads of students departed at 1:30 p. m. for an area rally at Poughkeepsie's Riverview Field. Some are expected to remain for the rally tonight while others will return to campus to view films and conduct further canvass of the community.

In the village of New Paltz, many flags were flying in counter protest to the moratorium. New Paltz merchants were open for business despite student demands for store closings to mark the day of moratorium.

The faculty of the state university at New Paltz met for the second time in a week Tuesday afternoon and approved by substantial majority the resolution calling for the "rapid and prompt withdrawal" of American troops from Vietnam.

At a previous meeting Friday, the faculty approved resolutions recognizing the legitimacy of the moratorium and condoning both student and faculty participation as matters of "individual conscience."

In a statement released Tuesday, New Paltz College President, Dr. John J. Neumaier concurred with the faculty judgement adding that he also personally supported the national moratorium.

Students at the state university conducted an all-night vigil on campus preparing for the Moratorium Day protest activities.

Throughout the night candles burned around a symbolic coffin while students took turns solemnly reading off the names of American servicemen killed in Vietnam.

Petitions signed by more than 50 members of the community, clergymen and members of the faculty were presented at the moratorium assembly at the New Paltz campus this morning.

The petitions supporting student action stated "I am in sympathy with Vietnam War Moratorium of Oct. 15 and support the position to withdraw all troops and end the fighting now."

Tonight's rally in Poughkeepsie will feature folk singer Pete Seeger and U. S. Senator Charles Goodell. College students throughout the Mid-Hudson area are expected to attend.

Meanwhile, the president of Vassar College, Dr. Alan Simpson, called on President Nixon today "to announce our unconditional withdrawal" from Vietnam.

KINGSTON

The Moratorium Day theme was carried out today as groups of Kingston High School students and about 200 at the Ulster County Community College participated in anti-war activities.

Approximately 60 of the 410 high school students who stayed away from classes met at the Academy Green and then fanned out at 10 a. m. to make house-to-house and store-to-store stops to explain to residents the purpose of the moratorium.

Black armbands and Work for Peace ribbons were worn by many students. Some students at the college wore parts of uniform and many displayed arm bands, a symbol of mourning for U.S. troops who gave their lives in Vietnam.

Literature titled Work for Peace, calling for immediate withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Vietnam, was distributed at the high school yesterday and today students left copies at homes and business places.

Police reported no complaints of disorder.

Petitions were circulated by students aimed at getting signatures of area residents who support the movement and the purpose of the moratorium.

One student was expelled Tuesday, and high school officials explained the reason was that he deposited literature in teacher's mail boxes at the high school. The action by school officials resulted in circulation of petitions demanding that Larry Breuer be reinstated to school immediately.

Dan H. Allen, high school principal, noted that only a small percentage of students were absent this morning when classes started.

Allen said 132 students were absent Tuesday. That was about normal, he said.

A group of high school students, who said they were not a part of the Work for Peace group, told a Freeman reporter, "We support the boys in Vietnam and our government, not those x x x," as they glanced at the peace groups on Academy Green.

About 200 students assembled in front of the Stone Ridge community college library this morning.

Bard Students Fan Out With Leaflets

By TIM SCHUSTER

ANNANDALE ON HUDSON

A contingent of Bard College students today took to the streets with anti-war literature and a petition urging persons to renounce the United States' current Vietnam policy.

Last night's meeting highlighted two speakers and a set of slides taken by a former U.S. Army photographer, whose sentiments were not always in direct line with those of President Nixon's.

The petition being circulated reads: "To Senators Charles Goodell and Jacob Javits, and Representative Hamilton Fish—We, the undersigned, your constituents, urge you to take action in Congress for the immediate cessation of American military involvement in Vietnam and for the immediate withdrawal of American servicemen from Vietnam."

A rally in the Village of Red Hook was held at noon by Bard students and those interested from the community at a Methodist Church. A student spokesman said that village officials would not consent to the use of village facilities for the meeting.

Viewpoints expressed by the former Army cameraman were bitter toward the "brass" who destroyed villages, killed children, and ruined the economy of Vietnam. "Many of the small kids have become Americanized," he said, "this war how it pleases him and contraband soft drinks to the GIs."

He also noted that "people are rare in the mountains; everything that moves, we kill."

He also showed many slides of some GIs in friendly banter with the homeless children. "There were a lot of opportunities to act like human beings and counteract our national effort," he said.

Aubrey Brown, a second speaker formerly with a negotiating team in Vietnam, stated that the "anti-war movement in the U.S. is valuable to those trying to end the war in Vietnam."

He outlined the Nixon administration as "not having the best interest of the Vietnamese at heart just wanting to end this war how it pleases him self." Aubrey spoke of the administration as an opponent, and said that the 40,000 U.S. troops killed is important but not the main issue. "Self-determination is the main issue," he said.

Aubrey quoted Hugo Hill of the Liberation News Service as saying that this is the "fight of oppressed people against the plunderers of the world."

Aubrey feels that demonstrations will be necessary for many months. Jon Rothschild, a member of Young Socialist Alliance from New York City, admonished Nixon for not heeding the will of the majority, and for his recent statement that "if the demonstrations stop, we might end the war in three years."

"The only thing necessary to negotiate is how fast we can move our troops out of Vietnam," said Rothschild. "It's the same as asking Germany to negotiate withdrawal of its troops from Stalingrad during World War II."

Rothschild regarded as the two main accomplishments of the anti-war movement the toppling of Lyndon Johnson and concessions wrung from the ruling class.

He said that about 5,000 persons control the entire United States economy, and advocated eliminating the free enterprise system because of its sponsorship of "imperialism." Rothschild also urged Bard students to observe and be active in the Nov. 14 Student

Strike, which will nationally attempt to shutdown all universities and high schools, and the Nov. 15 March on Washington, which he said should be the "largest anti-war movement in the history of the United States."

Peter Maroulis, a Poughkeepsie attorney who has defended many narcotics "busts," said he was in favor of the current system of government, against revolution but felt that "perhaps we should introduce a bill into Congress for the declaration of war. This will force the representatives to stand up and be counted, and very few would vote for a declared war, even though the expenses are being allocated now anyway."

Young Marines Launch Drive For Recruits

KINGSTON

Ulster County Young Marine units have launched a recruiting drive for new members, it has been announced by Gilbert E. Gray, commander of the organization.

Boys must be between eight and 14 years of age, a resident of Ulster County, in good health and willing to undergo rigorous physical and disciplinary training that is involved in the program.

Recruits must undergo a 12-week Boot Camp in which they learn fundamentals of military drill, discipline and the basic creed of young marines. After basic training the boys join the regular unit and participate in all of its functions.

Costs involved is a small insurance premium which is paid on enlistment, and the cost of uniform which will be explained by unit officers at drill sessions. The uniforms may not be purchased until the 10th week of training, and weekly payments of small amounts are received. This money must be earned by the individual recruit.

Gray said that no boy will be rejected from the Young Marines because of inability to buy his uniform. These arrangements will be made.

Boys interested in joining the unit are urged to attend a drill session Monday at the Kate Walton Field House at 7 p. m. Applications will be given recruits along with an indoctrination by Training officer John Ray Mayone. The boys must have a physical examination and file a certification before he begins boot training.

Plans are underway to form new boot platoons within the next three weeks. Any boy unable to report for applications at the drill session may obtain one at the office of Doctors Ambulance, 77 Greenkill Avenue, headquarters for the Young Marines.

4-H to Start Sheep Program This Saturday

KINGSTON

A new 4-H sheep program is being started for all interested boys and girls between the ages of 9-19. Actual ownership of sheep is not a requirement for joining.

There will be area meetings starting this Saturday, Oct. 18 from 10 a. m. to noon. These meetings will be held at the following residences: Ed Barry, Accord (turn off Route 209 in Accord; first right after Laundromat and one mile down on Stony Kill Road); Fred Holmes, The Vyl (Route 213 toward Olivebridge; up Vly-Atwood Road and continue right until "Balmoral" Sign); and Mrs. Norman Nelson, New Paltz (Crispell Lane, off Albany Post Road, near Routes 44 and 55).

An excellent sheep program, run by capable 4-H leaders has been planned.

4-H Leaders To Get Honors At Dinner Fete

The annual 4-H Leaders' Dinner will be held Oct. 18 at the Alpine Restaurant. This event, sponsored by the Ulster County Financial Council, is to say thank you to the 185 hard working 4-H volunteer leaders of Ulster County.

Marvin Horst, a Kingston resident, formerly from Colorado, will be the guest speaker. Horst was actively involved in the 4-H Junior Leadership program in Colorado and this will be the subject of his talk.

Bases Turned Over

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department has confirmed that U.S. military bases at Trabzon and Samsum, Turkey, will be turned over to Turkey no later than next June 30. Department spokesmen said the bases were communications complexes where several hundred men were employed. The bases were established in accordance with the North Atlantic Treaty.

Housing Conference

Civic Leaders Take Part in State Panel

KINGSTON Two Kingston civic leaders will play major roles in the New York State Association of Housing and Community Renewal Officials conference in late October.

Alexander Yosman, executive director of Kingston Housing Authority, is program chairman for the three-day conference which will be held Oct. 26, 27 and 28 at Thruway Hyatt House, Albany, on the theme

The Housing Thing: Prospects will be one of panel participants Oct. 27. He will join Richard L. Treat, vice president and general manager of The Kingston Daily Freeman, Albany Times-Union editor, in discussing The Housing Thing from a public relations standpoint. The panel session is designed to point the way to better community relations through information about urban renewal and housing.

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. of the 28th District will be the major speaker at the dinner Monday night, Oct. 27. He will be introduced by Yosman. Luncheon speaker the following day will be Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Tours of Albany local redevelopment and state government projects including South Mall will highlight work sessions for the delegates from all areas of the state. Panel discussions will center around the many aspects of housing and urban renewal, present and future.

State police searched for a 45-year-old man from Postum, Ill., and Lexington, Ky. They said he came to Pocono Downs racetrack several weeks ago from River Downs racetrack in Cincinnati, where he was last employed.

A Doer, Not a Talker...Candidate Singer

KINGSTON
Bernie Singer, Conservative candidate for Kingston mayor, in a statement today said he has no crystal ball to solve all of the city's problems.
"I unlike Mr. Koenig (Francis R. Koenig) am a doer not a talker," Singer said.
"He gazes into a tarnished Democratic-Liberal crystal ball at election time and sees an olympic swimming pool in the perhaps distant future," Singer continued.
"The fact is well known that performance not talk in private business or the operation of our city government is what we need now to have progress in Kingston.

"I do have a plan for an adequate swimming pool for Kingston and our surrounding area. You are all aware, I am sure, that our local YMCA will shortly be engaged in a building program.
"The YMCA building fund is and has been made possible by the contributions of corporations, private business men, professional people and individuals in the Kingston area.

"The YMCA is also a participating member of our Kingston Area Community Chest. I intend to ask for the opportunity to sit down with members of their governing board to discuss their present plans for a swimming pool in the new YMCA.
"I would ask them to incorporate into their projected planning, larger swimming facilities with availability of these facilities to all the people of the Kingston area. Those unable to pay the small fee necessary, I am sure, would be Kingston Point area disposal sponsored by our many service clubs, church organizations, and our more affluent citizens. "We are a community already burdened by high taxes and to undertake to build and maintain duplicate facilities is certainly impractical. An adequate swimming pool in our new YMCA available to all is my solution to this problem.

"There would be no tax burden for operation, supervision and maintenance. The long range plan for outdoor recreation of all types can also become a reality when the and landfill project is completed.

"There will be acres of land available for the development of a park. This will be a joint project of Kingston and New York State.
"I sincerely think that Kingston can move forward but only with the successful business practices which I have used in the operation of my own business and are now available to you. I will operate Kingston as a successful business.
"Sense not Non-Sense is My Slogan," Singer concluded.

Koenig Wants Modern Street Lighting

KINGSTON
"Completely modern street lighting for every area of our city" was called for today by Francis R. Koenig, Democratic Liberal candidate for mayor of the City of Kingston.
Calling it "an ideal to be sought," Koenig said that "In-the past four years, many old-fashioned, dim street lights have been replaced in many parts of our city with modern, bright lights and durable fixtures. Wherever this has been done, it has greatly improved the area and the contrast with the out-moded lights is obvious."

Koenig said that "not only is this a matter of pride to all citizens, but it is a safety measure to pedestrians as well as vehicular traffic. And, as many crime experts have stated, it is a deterrent to crime.
"Complete modernization of the street lighting system of the city may take some time to bring to a conclusion," he added, "for it is a rather expensive proposition.

"In the past two years, the street light work along Broadway has been extensive, and the improvement has been obvious to everyone. This is the kind of city improvement would hope to continue in other areas of our city.

"As a property owner and taxpayer of this city I have a deep interest in the improvement of all areas of our city, but at the same time I must consider increased cost factors and what bearing such improve-

BIKE-ATHON — A desire for a more healthy government will be symbolized by a bike-athon to be conducted by A. E. "Al" Woolley in his campaign for county legislator from District 8 (Gardiner-New Paltz). The Democrat candidate, shown with his daughter, Amy, said that using the bike for transportation will enable him to carry on a personal contact even in areas where the population is not so concentrated. Woolley will go biking the next two Fridays and Saturdays as well as Oct. 26, Nov. 1 and Nov. 2.

Student Group Blasts Southern Ulster GOP

NEW PALTZ
A group of students and faculty at the State University here has leveled a strong attack against the Republican leadership of this southern Ulster township.

In a statement, the group, which identifies itself as the "Young Democrats for Moriello, Woolley and Bouchard" characterizes the Republican leaders of New Paltz as "political tinhorns" who have been "using the town as an arena to exhibit their egos."

A. E. "Al" Woolley is running as a Democrat for the Ulster County Legislature (Dist. 8). Arthur Bouchard is the Democratic candidate for Town Justice, and Moriello, the Republican nominee for supervisor, was also endorsed by the Democrats.

The statement charges that New Paltz has been "poorly governed" by the "Savage Republicans" for decades because "the Democrats have never really challenged the GOP monopoly."

HALCYON PARK
Halcyon Park Civic Association members at a recent meeting heard from Town of Ulster candidates of both major parties at its regular meeting held at Bonanza Branch Offices of Kingston Savings Bank.

Each candidate present was invited to speak five minutes preceding a short question and answer period.

The Democrat-Conservative candidate for supervisor, Robert Stedje was the first speaker and outlined the duties of the supervisor. He also presented a four-point program to the more than 40 persons attending, consisting of a need for zoning in Town of Ulster, plus the continuing effort to complete the Mobile Home Park Ordinance. Recreation will also receive more attention than it has in the past, if he is elected, Stedje said. Stedje stated in closing, "I believe the Town of Ulster is lacking in responsible leadership. The town should also become a First Class Town which would allow its legislative body to remain at five persons, and having the two town justices serving only in a judicial capacity."

Walter Houle, Democrat Conservative for councilman, gave a brief description of the responsibilities of the position which he seeks, and then expressed a desire to work for a master plan for the town. "The do nothing government of the Republican Party for the past eight years should be discontinued, and new responsible people should be sitting on the town board," he concluded.

"My opponent has attended only about 70 per cent of the town board meetings and none of the special meetings or public hearings scheduled by the same board for the year 1969," was the charge made by Robert Robert Hayes the Democratic candidate for town justice in the Town of Ulster.

He continued, "Mr. Reilly (Arthur A. Reilly) also openly states that he doesn't want to sit on the town board of the Town of Ulster, but when he had an opportunity to allow the Town of Ulster to become a first class town, he voted as he was told and voted to remain a second class town."

"There are many problems facing the citizens of the town," he continued, but it appears that Mr. Reilly is indifferent to these problems as long as he can draw his check for being half-justice."

The incumbent Superintendent of Highways of the Town of Ulster, Edgar Elliott was the final candidate to be heard. He also was the only Republican candidate present at the meeting. He explained to the people why the highway budget had gone up 42 per cent in the past two years, and explained the $18,000 raise in this year's budget.

A report on the progress of the playground and park being built jointly by the Civic Association and Ulster Kiwanis was discussed and new association leaders were appointed for the coming year.

Israeli Planes Return

By United Press International
Israeli warplanes followed up overnight battling across the Suez Canal with raids today against Egyptian positions on the west bank of the waterway, military spokesmen in Tel Aviv said.

The flareup along the canal coincided with new fighting with Arab guerrillas that killed three Israelis and wounded two along the Israeli-Lebanese frontier—a new hotspot in the Middle East conflict.

Continuing the almost daily air attacks that began last month, the Israeli dive bombers struck at 7 a.m. in the central sector of the canal, hitting what were described only as Egyptian military targets.

All the raiders returned safely, the announcement said, having retaliated for the cross-canal artillery duels during the night that wounded one Israeli soldier.

Reports of the fighting on the Lebanese frontier followed Arab guerrilla accusations that President Nixon had sent an envoy to Beirut to ask Lebanon to put a damper on guerrilla raids from its soil into Israel. The Voice of Storm, a guerrilla radio station, said Tuesday the alleged American concern in Lebanon was "a prelude to landing American troops" in the Arab nation.

Senate Votes 72-3

Extends the War on Poverty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted Tuesday to extend the war on poverty for two more years. The House voted to give the government's 5.4 million civilian employees and military personnel semiautomatic yearly pay raises.

The Senate voted 72 to 3 to continue the war on poverty, authorizing $2.048 billion this fiscal year and $2.148 billion the next with a contingency.

It also passed an amendment giving the governors a veto over the controversial program, but softened it by giving the President authority to override a governor's veto.

The Senate bill also provided for a contingent $582 million in the second year. The Nixon administration had not requested the extra money, and it was doubtful the administration would spend it even if appropriated.

The bill now goes to the House, where a similar measure is pending in the Education and Labor Committee.

Cannot Accept

The House voted 310 to 52 to create a government commission that would revise pay scales yearly, with congressional consent, starting Jan. 1. Earlier, GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan read a letter from President Nixon saying he could not accept the bill because it would force reduction in the number of federal jobs and curtail some federal

A New Chance for Vacancies On the Majestic Ballot Case

KINGSTON, Supreme Court Justice Edward S. Conway reportedly allowed the committee of vacancies to act again and name a candidate, stipulating it may not name a man for more than one post.

Majestic previously sought the posts of county legislature and supervisor. After several Board of Election hearings and court proceedings, Majestic was finally placed on the election ballot as a candidate for supervisor on both the Democratic and the Anti-Sales Tax tickets. The move was reportedly objected to by attorney John Egan who represents three Gardiner taxpayers. They filed the original objections to all of Majestic's petition. Egan took the matter back into Supreme Court yesterday and reportedly said today that he will appeal Justice Conway's latest decision.

Last week a case against Democratic Election Commissioner Joseph I. Epstein who voted to accept all of Majestic's petitions was dropped. Egan had contended that Epstein was in contempt of the court in his decision. Epstein was represented by Democratic County Chairman Aaron E. Klein, and the county was represented by County Attorney Abram F. Molyneux. The committee on vacancies is expected to act on the matter immediately.

The Democratic vacancy committee consists of Della Watt, John Bonagura and Henry Ganzer. The Anti-Sales Tax vacancy committee includes John T. Casey, Frank Tantillo and Thomas Travis.

Egan represents Warren J. McDowell, Roy F. Denniston and Richard Borchering.

Area Hospitals Urge 'Yes' on Amendment 1

KINGSTON, The administrators of three area hospitals — Benedictine, Kingston and Ellenville Community Hospital are urging voters to vote "yes" Nov. 4 on Amendment Number One which calls for modernizing hospitals with state loans rather than tax dollars.

Sister Mary Charles, administrators of Benedictine, Anthony R. Triulzi of Kingston and Boris Koefoed of Ellenville point out that the amendment would not place any great burden on New York State taxpayers because the program uses state credit for loans which would eventually be repaid.

They feel that many hospitals and other health facilities in

New York State are severely hampered in their efforts to provide top quality care because their physical plants may be badly rundown.

Modern advances in science, medicine and hospital practice have made possible dramatically new and effective patterns of diagnosis and treatment, they state but, many such improved methods call for expensive structural changes in hospital buildings and in some cases total replacement.

Explaining further they state that, "Unfortunately because hospitals are so chronically underfunded, the money for alterations and replacement of the physical plants is just not available. And, it is not obtainable in today's money market, except at prohibitive cost, if at all."

The amendment has already passed both houses of two successive Legislatures with support from both parties. Implementing legislation has also been passed. If a majority of voters endorse the amendment with a "yes" vote, it will be possible for non-profit hospitals to borrow from the state, or subdivisions of the state, money needed for essential modernization or new construction.

State Dog Ruling Will Be Appealed

SAUGERTIES, An appeal will be filed on a recent court ruling which invalidates a stipulation in the Town of Saugerties dog ordinance requiring proof of rabies vaccination before a license can be issued.

Town Attorney Louis P. Francello said he had heard that the Supreme Court in Albany had ruled that the rabies vaccination stipulation in the dog ordinance was invalid, but had not received the order from the court. When he receives the order, Francello said he would file an appeal.

The Town Clerk's Office has received no official notification of the court order and is still requiring dog license applicants to submit proof of the dog's vaccination for rabies as stipulated in the town's dog ordinance.

The matter was brought to court by the Department of Agriculture and Markets in Albany, which has jurisdiction over the issuing of dog licenses. Dog owners in the Town of Saugerties had complained to the department that the town clerk would not issue a dog license unless proof of rabies vaccination was submitted with the application in accordance with the dog ordinance.

The Department of Agriculture and Markets contended that the rabies vaccination stipulation could only be made mandatory by and order of the state health commissioner and no such order has been issued.

The department's position was upheld by Supreme Court Justice A. Franklin Mahoney at Special Term in Albany. The ruling noted that "the ordinance is an invalid exercise of legislative authority by the Saugerties Town Board, and the town clerk is directed to issue dog licenses pursuant to the Agriculture and Markets Law."

The order was reportedly filed in Albany Supreme Court on Sept. 29.

Problems from the newly adopted dog ordinance started early in January when residents brought in applications for the licensing of their dogs.

One resident Joseph Hommel wrote to the State Department of Agriculture and Markets Dog Licensing Bureau and on the basis of a letter received from that office he refused to have his dog vaccinated.

The letter from the department said in part, "there is no order pursuant to the provisions of the public health law requiring all dogs six months of age or over to be vaccinated to prevent rabies, in effect in Ulster County. The town clerk therefore has no authority to require proof of rabies vaccination, before issuing a dog license."

After an emergency meeting of the Town Board, in January Town Attorney Francello directed the town clerk, Miss Marian Newkirk, to strictly adhere to the dog ordinance and refuse to issue a dog license unless proof of rabies vaccination has been filed with the application.

Two Fires In Po'keepsie

POUGHKEEPSIE, Fire and police inspectors are checking into the cause of two blazes that struck this city within five minutes early this morning, less than six blocks apart.

Fires broke out in a commercial laundry at Washington and Broadway Avenues at 12:55 a.m., five minutes after a fire was discovered in rubbish behind an apartment house at 350 Mansion Avenue.

Fire officials said today that both are listed as suspicious in nature and that an investigation is being conducted to determine the causes.

The laundry was being renovated following a recent two alarm fire, police said.

Officials said no injuries were reported in connection with either fire.

Congressman Intercedes On Honk Bridge Load

POUGHKEEPSIE, Intervention by Rep. Hamilton Fish, Jr. has resulted in the posting of the "Honk Falls Bridge." Napanoch, from ten to five ton loads, it was announced today by the Congressman's office.

In a letter received from T.W. Parker, Commissioner of the New York State Department of Transportation, it was also learned that bid letting for a new bridge is also taking place.

Congressman Fish contacted the Department of Transportation about the decrepit and dangerous condition of the bridge after an inspection of the structure at the request of local citizens.

In his letter to Congressman Fish, Commissioner Parker said: "This bridge has been subjected to annual inspection. However, upon receipt of your letter, I directed that the bridge be evaluated once more. As a result of the latest inspection, it has been concluded that it would be wise to reduce the posted load limit from ten to five tons to provide an added factor of safety. I have ordered in 1941.

that this be done immediately." "I am certainly pleased at this action by the state, and by the announcement that bids will be let and construction started in the immediate future," Congressman Fish said. "I have been assured by Commissioner Parker that traffic will be detoured from the bridge as soon as the contractor begins work."

"In the meantime, the reduction of the legal load limit on the bridge is appreciated, as the bridge is in obviously deplorable condition," the congressman added.

Radtke Arrested

MUNICH, Germany (UPI)—Lt. Col. Wilhelm Radtke of the West German border patrol has been arrested in suspicion of ordering the World War II execution of 1,000 Russian Jews, the Munich prosecution's office said Tuesday. Radtke result of the latest inspection, was a lieutenant in the German army in the war and was suspected of ordering the shootings in an area between Nikopol and Konotop in Russia.

Snowmobiles — Fee, Course Are Favored

JOHNSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — The chairman of a legislative committee studying the uses of snowmobiles, said Tuesday he favors a registration fee and safety course for owners of the machines.

Assemblyman Glenn Harris, R-Canada Lake, said that testimony before his joint legislative committee on environmental management has revealed an inclination towards regulation of the vehicles, which a Conservation Department witness said number about 100,000 in the state. Manufacturers estimate there are about 50,000, Harris said.

The Conservation Department has recommended a $3 annual snowmobile registration fee similar to that imposed on pleasure boats that ply state waters.

Money left after administration costs should be applied to the construction of snowmobile trails in state recreation areas, one witness suggested at a forum Tuesday in this eastern Mohawk Valley community.

Harris, whose 10-member committee held a hearing about snowmobiles in Wolcott three weeks ago, said he and the members plan to meet with representatives of the Conservation and Motor Vehicle Departments and other groups interested in registration.

Harris added that he felt recommendations about snowmobile legislation should be made to the next session of the legislature.

End of the Vietnam War

We would have more confidence in them if the various forecasts of the end of the war in Vietnam were tripartite—from Washington and Saigon and Hanoi.

As it is, the Washington and Saigon optimism is not enough. In this case it takes three to end the war—maybe four, if we count the Viet Cong—and Hanoi and the Viet Cong are strangely silent.

Maybe "strangely" is the wrong adjective for their silence. Perhaps we should have said "strategically" silent. For their strategy now for months has been to let the United States make the concessions, let South Vietnamese endorse them no matter how reluctantly, and then sit back and wait for another round of concessions and endorsements and non-committal silence.

It has been a most profitable game for the North Vietnamese: First, the bombing halt, then the beginning of troop withdrawals, and next who knows what?

From Saigon, South Vietnam's Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, predicted that U.S. ground forces will end their combat role in the country by the close of 1970, when the U.S. military effort will consist mainly of logistical support functions—that means supply and arms deployment.

From Washington, the new Senate Minority Leader, Senator Hugh Scott, said President Nixon is de-escalating the war, "we are going to get out of this war, but it may take a long time before the enemy will concede."

From the field in Vietnam, the ground war lull continued across the country, despite heavy enemy rocket fire, which however was more irksome than damaging.

From Hanoi, silence. From the Viet Cong headquarters, silence. The enemy silence is fed by such occurrences as the bipartisan demand by 90 House members for complete withdrawals at the earliest date possible. And by the scheduling of hearings to probe the Vietnam war policy by Senator J. W. Fulbright's Foreign Affairs Committee, and by demonstrations against continued U.S. participation in the fighting.

Hanoi can afford to keep silent. Its friends here are doing its work.

School Lunches

National School Lunch Week currently is being observed and its significance to New York State residents is manifest in the daily serving of some one million and a half well-balanced, nutritious lunches in 4,420 state and private schools. The widespread acceptance of the importance a good lunch to the health and well-being of children is shown in the great growth of the school lunch program.

"School Lunch Aids Good Health" is the theme for this year's observance and emphasis is being placed on the role the program plays in keeping the nation strong and healthy.

The school lunch program operates under the provisions of the 1946 National School Lunch Act. The federal government contributes cash and food amounting to about one-fourth the total cost of the program and meal payments and funds received from state and local sources make up the balance.

The school lunch programs are the nation's largest consumers of so-called surplus foods. Foods already purchased by the federal government under price support programs find their way into the diets of children rather than into the warehouses and costly storage.

Last year, the federal government spent about $20 million in cash assistance for the New York program. Nearly half of the contribution was earmarked for milk. In addition, federal food commodities valued at $20 million were also made available.

This week the Consolidated School District, along with other area school districts, is observing the 22nd anniversary of the project. Down through these years, the school lunch staff has proved to be a good provider and dedicated menu planner.

Recognition by the people that it builds strong bodies and alert minds, the school lunch program has become firmly established as part of the educational system.

The state of Mississippi appropriated $4 million for its program to provide state loans of $200 a year to students attending private, parochial and other church-related schools. U.S. district Judge Harold Cox temporarily restrained disbursements until a federal court rules on whether the law fosters a private segregated school system. It would have to be a frugal system that costs only $200 a pupil.

North Vietnam's call on its citizens to study and act upon the late Ho Chi Minh's testament and his thought is taken as a means of elevating the late President to the same ideological level as China's Mao Tse-tung. Revering their leaders' thoughts is one way of keeping people adhering to communism.

Two car manufacturers, Ford and American Motors, are including manuals for do-it-yourself maintenance on some of their 1970 models. They come in response to owners' howls on the high cost of service and repairs.

"Can't You See We're Busy?"

David Lawrence Says Government Policies Appear Contradictory

WASHINGTON — It must be hard for the average person to understand the news these days, as the actions of government appear to be contradictory at times. There is no explanation, for example, as to why the federal government withholds funds from public schools if they do not integrate, and then in almost similar circumstances says it will not demand desegregation in other federally financed programs.

The latest paradox arises from a statement by Floyd Hyde, Assistant Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. His department has 300 million dollars to spend this year on a model-city program, and he has just announced that the administration is so determined to guarantee "local control" there will be no veto over any slum-renewal plan designed to perpetuate segregation. A total of 150 cities have been awarded grants to rebuild their slum areas.

Mr. Hyde declared that if the residents of a neighborhood which is to be rebuilt want to retain a racial makeup that is all-black or all-white, the government will not stop them. He himself prefers projects which foster integration, but explains that he will not try to force his views on any city or neighborhood. He stated in an interview with the United Press International:

"We feel these are local decisions. We just want to make sure that these are free decisions, that they were not forced upon the neighborhood. As long as we are satisfied that the people have had freedom of choice and want to go that route, then we don't plan to interfere."

With respect to public schools, however, just the opposite policy is being pursued by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. "Freedom of choice" is denied parents, and federal funds are being used to force local authorities to integrate schools and classrooms even if it requires the busing of students from one district to another. Congress, in the Civil Rights Act of 1964, specifically prohibited official action for the purpose of correcting "racial imbalance." But this has been widely disregarded, and federal funds have been withheld as a means of bringing about "compulsory integration."

Recently a controversy arose over postponement of court action against 30 school districts in Mississippi. A federal court granted a request by the Justice Department for a delay because the local government was not able to deal with the desegregation problem by this autumn and needed more time. Immediately Negro groups in the north pointed to this as evidence that the Nixon administration was not carrying out desegregation.

Officials here answered by saying that circumstances differ in each case and that immediate implementation of the desegregation plans in this instance would "produce chaos, confusion and a catastrophic educational setback" for the pupils involved. But all such explanations are scorned by the critics as "excuses" and "alibis," and the Supreme Court is being asked to block the delay.

For a long time it was assumed that each school district or each town could draw its own lines for schools and that this would be a proper exercise of its authority. But in recent years the courts have enlarged upon the original interpretation of the Supreme Court in its famous school decision in 1954, and have taken upon themselves to rule when desegregation is or is not adequately attained.

No more flagrant example of efforts to correct "racial imbalance" is to be found than in the assignment of teachers by racial quotas. Local school boards have been compelled in some cases to disregard educational qualifications in order to get a racial balance in faculties. Many teachers have quit their jobs in the public school system as a consequence. But the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare has stuck to its policy that the federal government, through the use of public funds, can decide whether enough white or black teachers are employed in a particular school district.

In some problems arising out of racial questions, the Nixon administration is trying to take a middle course and let each district decide for itself what it shall do. Previously the northern cities have not had much interference, while the southern communities have encountered considerable opposition to the methods they use in operating their schools.

be able to see ourselves in the same way.

"Nor would the world look upon us in a good light. Even some of those countries now telling us to get out of Vietnam would turn against us."

The problem would be compounded, it is suggested, for those war critics who for five years, have successfully blinded themselves to Hanoi's bloody internal repression, to its calculated assassinations of thousands of South Vietnamese leaders and its regular killings of countless thousands of South Vietnamese civilians.

These blinded critics have equated "good" South Vietnamese with the Viet Cong. The predominant millions who have consistently shunned the Viet Cong and the tens of thousands who have fought and died resisting the VC and Hanoi's own armies, are either ignored or blackened as the agents of a despised Saigon government.

The tunnel-visioned critics are highly selective in the application of their "humanity." If Hanoi's standard slaughterous reprisal and repression should come to South Vietnam, these critics may take on an enormous burden of new guilt as they find that the non-Viet Cong are human beings, too.

We will all bear it. But we — and especially the blinded ones — will surely try to lay a big part of it on President Nixon, the central target today of the great shouts for fast total withdrawal.

Jack Anderson Says Some Peace Demonstrators Are Getting Their Orders From Hanoi

TOKYO — For the millions at home who will demonstrate against the Vietnam war today, the intelligence files here contain some facts worth pondering.

This column has examined documentary evidence that a few rabid revolutionaries who seek to dominate the anti-war movement in the United States are receiving instructions from Hanoi. They aren't against war at all; they merely are on the enemy's side.

Indeed, their aim is to stir up new "wars of liberation," including guerrilla warfare in the streets of America, to advance the communist cause. Their immediate instructions are to agitate in the United States for an unconditional withdrawal from Vietnam.

In retrospect, I believe it was a mistake for the U.S. to plunge into the Vietnam conflagration. This remote patch of jungle simply hasn't been worth the price in American blood and treasure.

But those who are in a big rush to write off 38,887 American war dead and $81,407,000,000 of the taxpayers' money should consider the French experience. The French pull-out of North Vietnam 15 years ago precipitated a communist slaughter that hadn't been duplicated since the mad days of Adolph Hitler.

Risk of Bloodbath

Too hasty abandonment of South Vietnam, likewise, might produce another bloodbath. Yet the Hanoi-directed militants, according to intelligence documents, are striving to turn the anti-war protest into a national demand for "quick and complete withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Vietnam."

Possibly to avoid treason charges, the American militants are not in direct touch with the Hanoi government. Most contacts, apparently, have been kept on a friend-to-friend organization-to-organization basis.

The Hanoi-controlled South Vietnam Liberation Students' Union, for example, maintains an underground liaison with U.S. leaders of the Students for a Democratic Society and the Students' Committee for the End of the Vietnam War.

On the eve of the Vietnam Moratorium, Tran Bau Kiem, the Students' Union chairman and former chief Viet Cong delegate in Paris, wrote a letter to his American disciples urging "the active and massive participation of the American youths and students in this fall struggle movement."

Hanoi Letter

The letter, dated October 6, called for a prompt American pull-out from Vietnam. Kiem contended that "the replacement of a score of thousands of troops is insignificant, as compared with about half a million U.S. youths still remaining in South Vietnam."

"Your interests and those of the American people and the United States do not lie in such a drop-by-drop troop pull-out, but in the quick and complete withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Vietnam; not in the Vietnamization or de-Americanization of the war in South Vietnam, which is unpopular and costly in human and material resources, but in ending it."

If Mr. Nixon sincerely wants to live up to his promise to end the war, a promise which he made when he ran for office and when he took over the presidency," the Kiem letter continued, "there is no other way than to respond to the 10-point solution of the Republic of South Vietnam's provisional revolutionary government by quickly withdrawing all U.S. and satellite troops from South Vietnam without imposing any conditions and by abandoning the lackey Thieu Ky-Khiem administration, leaving the South Vietnamese people to decide their own internal affairs."

Jim Bishop: Reporter

It is impossible for me to remember a joke longer than five minutes. I am easily convulsed by a funny story and by the time I mumble: "That's one I must remember," I have forgotten it.

There's a block in my block. I thought Rowan and Martin's line: "I had a date with a frigid girl last night. Every time she opened her mouth a light went on," was funny, but by the time my wife got off the phone, it was three jokes later.

I have written "cue lines" to jokes on a pad, and then lost the pad. Sometimes a gag will remind me of two or three other in a similar category. Someone on t.v. said she had bought a parakeet. "Does it talk?" she was asked. "Sure it does," came the response. "Well," her friend said peevishly, "what does it say?" The woman shrugged. "Who can understand parakeet?"

I think Mark Wachs, who wrote a book about funny stories, told a better one when he painted a word portrait of a bunch of geese flying south for the winter, and one far back, said: "Why do we always follow that idiot leader?" and the other goose, flapping silently, said: "He's got the map."

Or the one about the jerk who asked for a parrot and got an owl. In a month, he met the shrewd owner of the pet shop. "How's that bird I sold you?" he was asked. "Is he talking much?" "Nope," said bright eyes, "but he sure is doing a lot of thinking."

"Say, Doc," said a phone caller at 2 a.m., "what am I gonna do for a broken leg?" "Limp!" roared the doctor, and hung up. Then there's the double reverse gag. Man walks into bar holding a duck. Bartender says: "Buddy, what's wrong with that pig?" "This ain't no pig," said the customer. "It's a duck." "I wasn't talking to you," the bartender said. "I was talking to the duck."

On second thought, I like limping jokes. Saleslady to customer: "What's your pleasure, sir?" "Truthfully," the man said, "making love, but I came in to buy a hat." The fat man in the haberdashery who moaned: "The only ready-made thing I can use is a handkerchief." Wachs, who not only writes funny stories, but is also a public relations expert, said of marriage: "No wife ever gets what she expects, and no husband ever expects what he gets."

The secretary quit: caught the boss kissing his wife. The car salesman who asked: "What do you want most out of a car?" and the customer said: "My son." It's easier to raise boys than girls — you don't feel so bad when you belt them.

Father to little boy: "Son, you may have noticed that mother is getting heavier." "Yep," the kid said. "Well," Dad said, "that means that the stork is going to fly over our house." "Holy smoke," the little kid said, "I hope he doesn't scare momma. She's pregnant."

There are a thousand slaesmen jokes, but I like the observation that a good salesman is a man who sells merchandise that doesn't come back to customers who do. Or, an art dealer is a man who sells paintings he hates to customers who don't understand them for three times what they're worth.

I was always a sucker for the oldie about the rich Texan who was buried in his Cadillac with the air conditioning and hi-fi set on. "Man," said a grave digger,

"that's livin'." The sillies too: What did the man say to the wall? One more crack and I'll plaster you. Reporter asked a politician what the issues of the campaign were. The campaigner said: "There's only one. Kennedy's got the job, and I want it."

One more reporter joke: Cub out on his first assignment tried to be friendly with an older and wiser man. He didn't get far. At last he pointed to the setting sun and said: "That's west, isn't it?" "If it ain't," the old timer said, "you got one helluva scoop, son."

Two men fistfighting. A little boy is watching. Stranger says: "What's going on?" Kid says: "My dad and Mr. Brown are fighting." "Yeah? Which one's your father?" "That's what they're fighting about."

Perhaps, in these days of affluence and a little philosophy, the best domestic line came from an aggrieved husband who was arguing with his wife: "We have two cars," he said, "two t.v. sets, two bathrooms. How come we can't have two opinions around here?"

Can't remember the good ones from one minute to the next...

Supports Moratorium
Editor, The Freeman

I am writing in support of the observation of October 15, 1969, sponsored by the Vietnam Moratorium Committee, as a citizens mobilization against the present course of our government's policy and action in Vietnam.

The war is in every way a scandal. Like all wars, it has its own history of justification and explanation put forward so as to enable men to kill or be killed with a good conscience. But unlike some other wars, this one cannot be carried on, certainly no longer, with a good conscience. It is a scandal that our government is now reduced to saying that the only remaining pretext for continuing it is that for the time being (which stretches on from month to month, from year to year) we are at a loss to be able to end it. There are times, very hard times, when a people's conscience and sanity can no longer be ransomed by their military vanity, or the prospects of their leaders. Such a time, a hard time, has come, has indeed long since come, for our people and we must recognize the signs of that time.

Each such sign is itself a scandal. The recent disclosures of the actions of certain of the Green Berets; the clandestine operations of assassination, murder and intrigue carried on by the C.I.A. all over the world; the stupendous corruption and profiteering in Vietnam itself; the moral ruin of the Saigon government and the degradation of the native population; the insane rapacity of the Pentagon for larger and larger military expenditures, some hidden, others never explained, still other contrary to the Geneva Convention — these are all scandals and signs of the brutalization of our national character. They leave us no claim on the world's respect, no ground for our own self-respect. The best we can think to say is that "war is a dirty game" or that "the Commies are worse." And so on the strength of the excuse that our enemies are more immoral than we are, we dumbly go deeper into national disaster at the expense of our own lives, our own money, our own national integrity — lying to ourselves and being fooled by our leaders that just a little more time, a little more bombing, a little more assassination, a little more pacification and more namization, a little more 'search-and-destroy,' a little more Thieu and a little more Key..... and what? Where are we likely to be? In what way better off? At the Paris peace table or anywhere else?

The present Administration came to power with a clear mandate to resolve and end American military involvement in Vietnam, the Johnson Administration having fallen for its failure to do just that. After nearly a year in office, there are no satisfactory indications that this Administration has understood the public will nor evolved any clear plan of its own for accomplishing it — nor realized that Vietnam is not America's "Finest Hour" but rather a folly and a menace to our national well-being. Sixty more days of silence will change nothing nor convince the other side that America is united in support of continuing the war another year, another two years, or however long the puppet Saigon military junta can brow-beat us into staying, spending, and dying while they build up Swiss Bank accounts. It is not a matter of America "bugging out"; it is a matter of America finally deciding that continuance of the war is not in the national interest. America will neither win nor lose the war — we will withdraw from actively participating in it, revising our diplomatic strategy however we must to accomplish that basic objective.

Such a change in strategy and action will be inconvenient for a number of people — for the Saigon black-marketeers and prostitutes, for the Chinese who are delighted to have us bogged down there fighting, or the decadent landowners of South Vietnam who are the dependents and captives of the rickety military regime, for the Pentagon and the military hardware industry in the U.S. But the government of the United States was not elected to serve any of those interests. It was elected to serve the interests of the young men who now perish, 8,000 to 10,000 a year in Vietnam and to protect and promote the stability of America's resources and institutions all of which are threatened by the pointless waste, wreckage, and cost of this conflict.

And so the time has come to disengage and withdraw from active military involvement in Vietnam, clearly, decisively, and quickly and to develop, as best we can, other ways to influence the course of events in Southeast Asia as we think best. That will require more imagination than dropping bombs on the jungle or turning "counter-insurgency forces" loose to "pacify" peasants hamlets or murder triple agents. It will require taking immediate steps to see to it the same pattern of U. S. military advice, presence, buildup, support and finally engagement, doesn't reproduce itself in Laos, Cambodia, or Thailand, all of them more potential scandals and booby traps.

That time has come, October 15, 16, 17 and every single precious day thereafter until it's done and we are free, with a better conscience, to turn our strength to sensible and useful tasks.

Sincerely,
RAYMOND H. NELSON
Condemns Moratorium
Tillson, N. Y.
October 13, 1969

Editor, The Freeman:
Please print the following article in the earliest possible issue of The Freeman since it pertains to the October 15 Anti-War demonstrations.

The national anti-war movement is an excellent example of leftist irrational and irresponsible behavior. The Young Americans for Freedom desires speedy end to the Viet Nam conflict through a decisive and final victory for the South Vietnamese over the Communist terrorists. Leftists fail to realize that President Nixon has done more to speedily de-escalate the war in ten months than eight years of Democratic government did to escalate it. Those in Washington who support the Moratorium, many of whom were in the former government, have washed their hands of trying to find an allied victory in Viet Nam.

but never stirred against the Czech Invasion, the Tet offensives or other continued acts of terrorism and barbarism against the civilian populace of South Viet Nam.

Instead of ending the war, the Anti War Movement has perpetrated communist offensives, weakened our soldiers morale, and has made a mockery of our lenient and honorable platform at the Paris Peace talks. The Communists will never take our stand seriously until they see that the entire country is firmly behind our President. It is not Washington that is killing our soldiers, but the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese Army. When was the last time the New Left demonstrated against the enemy, or is it that they consider our government the true enemy?

The Young Americans for Freedom hopes that the President will treat the October 15 demonstrations as any other enemy offensive and redouble his efforts to protect the unselfish cause for which we are fighting for and at the same time bring the war to a final victory.

As publicity chairman of the local Y.A.F. and as a concerned youth, I would appreciate your cooperation.

Sincerely Yours,

Editor, The Freeman
Your paper was very prompt in publishing the letter I sent in regard to the postal service. There was only one difference in the printing of the letter from what I wrote. The number of pieces of mail reported by the letter was 89 billion, quite a difference. I have been it questioned about that part of the letter.

Thanking you very much for making this correction for the information of the public.

Induction Refusal

Editor, The Freeman
After reading the statement of Mrs. Alice Johnson and her son Eric regarding his refusal to report for induction, I have sent her the following letter which I would like to share with your readers.

Dear Mrs. Johnson: I could not let your and your son's letter in The Freeman go by without writing to express my own sympathy and moral support, especially in view of the hate mail and hate calls you will probably receive from the many self-styled "patriots" in the printing of the letter from that infest Ulster County.

Although I cannot agree with your son's advocacy of pacifism under all circumstances, I feel it is more than praiseworthy in the face of one of the stupidest and most senseless wars that the era of growing militarism at the expense of social progress and alienation of the young from the old, your son has taken a morally courageous step in the cause of peace.

It is tragic that so many Eric Johnsons must make a sacrifice to convince the country of the need for peace.

Yours very truly
RICHARD H. ROSICHAN

Reuner Was Contractor for Church Work

KINGSTON

Herbert H. Reuner of Reuner Monuments, 24 Hurley Avenue, was the contractor for the face-lifting and new dress on the Civil War memorial in Old Dutch Churchyard.

The award for the cleaning operations was given to Reuner by the consistory of that church and Reuner in turn sub-contracted for the project.

Included in the contract was the cleaning of two large plaques on either side of the entrance to the church from Main Street.

The Freeman published a page one report on memorial work in Monday's edition.

Sojourner Memorial

The memorial program for Sojourner Truth to be presented by children of the Downtown Community School of New York City will be held tonight 7:30 at the municipal auditorium.

The program is being presented in Kingston under the auspices of a committee of interested area residents.

The Opry Celebration officially begins Thursday. Licensing agencies, recording companies and publishing houses hold their own conventions in conjunction with the Opry celebration and the first of these side shows opened Tuesday night.

A highlight of the week-long celebration comes tonight when the Country Music Association presents its own annual awards before a national television audience. The ceremonies, with Tennessee Ernie Ford in charge, will originate from the Opry House.

Vying for the top awards are two Arkansas natives—Johnny Cash and Glen Campbell. The two country music stars, who have their own network TV shows, have been nominated for male vocalist of the year, entertainer of the year, single record of the year and album of the year.

Campbell also was nominated with Miss Bobbie Gentry for the award for the top vocal group.

In This State: Lots of Booty For the Asking

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A state government hasn't much use for a case of unused rubber boots but that and a variety of other items plus $130 million in cash are under the protective arm of State Comptroller Arthur Levitt's office.

Virtually all of the booty has been misplaced over the years by an estimated 2 1/4 million New Yorkers and they — or their heirs—may have it all back just for the asking.

Inactive bank accounts, unclaimed stocks or bonds, utility deposits and legacies are among the abandoned property that comprises the total now held in custody by the state.

A booklet issued by Levitt's office indicates that the state takes in about $10 million in such neglected funds each year and returns about $1.5 million to owners or claimants once found.

In addition, Levitt's office has handled old furniture, antique cars, an assortment of keys and even livestock. These items were taken under a section of the Abandoned Property Laws which permit persons holding someone else's property to submit it to the state if unclaimed in six years.

New York, the booklet says, differs from other states in administration of the neglected property in that there is no time limit set on reclamation. Owners or claimants may have possession of the property at any time. Other states take legal possession after a certain time lapses.

In the case of articles such as the boots, Levitt may ask for the cash equivalent. Claims made against such items are paid in cash.

There is no ceiling on the amount which can be claimed—other than that for which ownership can be proven—but there is a bottom limit of $3.

One incident detailed in the booklet describes how a claim of $2.30 was returned to a Boy Scout even though a minimum had been imposed. The sum was contained in a bank account which had gone neglected for 14 years.

The booklet asserts it is a relatively simple procedure to recover abandoned property. Claimants should first write the office stating their interest and asking that records be checked. If the query develops into a valid claim, the office will send a formal notice for the next step.

Mini-Skirted Aide Abducted

Kidnaper Strikes Nursery School

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (UPI)—A pretty, 17-year-old nursery school assistant was kidnaped at knife-point Tuesday by a man believed to be a fugitive wanted by the FBI. Police think the girl is being held hostage today to ensure the escape of her abductor. Kirsten "Kitty" Anderson, a miniskirted teacher's aide at the Peter Pan Nursery School at Arroyo Grande, 15 miles south of here, was abducted by a man and forced into a stolen car shortly before noon. Authorities said the description of the man, given by two other women at the school, matched in almost exact detail that of Robert A. Harvey, charged with a previous kidnapping and serious wounding of a youth in Albuquerque, N.M. An all-points nationwide bulletin was issued by the FBI for Harvey, who walked out of a jail in Santa Maria, Calif., Saturday night. Authorities said they were cleaning out the cells and had herded all the prisoners into one room when Harvey "just sort of walked away."

The man who abducted the student was hiding in the nursery when Mrs. Beth Peters, the operator and owner, opened the door at 11 a.m. He tied Mrs. Peters, then Miss Anderson and a cook and put them in a bathroom. He then forced the girl to accompany him and fled in Mrs. Peters' car—a green station wagon. The two women, found two hours later, gave police the man's description and authorities said he closely resembled Harvey, 31, who was listed as "armed and dangerous."

An Arroyo Grande police spokesman said the abductor could have taken three different major highway routes out of the area and that "he had a good start" before police learned of the kidnap.

Singer Charges Opera Scandal

MILAN, Italy (UPI)—Twenty carloads of police screamed to a stop at the world's most famous opera house called in by a Brazilian baritone who says the way La Scala is run is a $31.2 million scandal. The baritone, Giuseppe Zecchillo, handed out leaflets also demanding the resignation of opera director Antonio Ghiringhelli. Milan Mayor Aldo Aniasi was aghast that police surrounded La Scala, a temple of culture and respectability for 200 years. One-hundred police blocked all entrances, barred employees from leaving or telephoning and seized all financial records for the past 20 years.

Zecchillo had filed a complaint with Assistant District Attorney Pasquale Carcasio, who had dispatched the carloads of police. Zecchillo alleged specifically that:

—Five operas were removed from La Scala's program days before the date set for dress rehearsals, at a cost to the opera house of $800,000.

Ghiringhelli, who has run La Scala since World War II, shrugged.

"An individual has filed a complaint and the judiciary is rightly investigating," he said. "As for myself, I am not in the least worried."

It was not the first time Zecchillo had stirred up La Scala. He has been fighting for years against the power of theatrical agents. He says they control the hiring and firing of opera singers.

Zecchillo disrupted the 1965 season by showering leaflets from La Scala's many balconies saying theatrical agents were "the Mafia of opera houses."

Welfare Reform—Administration Hopeful

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nixon forces are confident Congress will travel the President's trail-blazing path to massive welfare reform, despite pockets of influential opposition.

"I'm pretty sure we'll end up with at least some variation of the family assistance plan," Welfare Secretary Robert H. Finch predicted on the eve of the start of hearings today by Rep. Wilbur Mills' House Ways and Means Committee.

President Nixon wants a precedent-shattering family assistance welfare plan providing $1,600 a year in minimum federal payments to a family of four. Government subsidies would continue on a sliding scale until 1970.

the family's income reached $3,920 a year.

One of Finch's top staffers pointed to a mountain of favorable newspaper editorials and said: "I never thought the welfare reform plan would go over this big."

A poll this week provided further indications of the nation's readiness to alter the welfare system. It showed 47 per cent favoring President Nixon's plan, 17 per cent opposed, and 36 per cent undecided.

The House Committee hearings also involved a look at a companion measure to boost Social Security benefits 10 per cent across the board beginning with checks mailed in April 1970.

Committee Chairman Mills, D-Ark., has maintained a benevolent neutrality on the welfare reform plan. And he says the social security increases should be "at least" 10 per cent.

President Nixon's proposed welfare program would replace present dependent children's aid, benefit the so-called working poor for the first time, double the present $4.2 million in federal welfare spending, and add about 12.4 million persons to public assistance rolls.

The bigger bill and increased number of recipients are merely "start-up costs," the administration argues. Both would drop as built-in work incentives take hold, officials say.

Able-bodied adult beneficiaries, except mothers of preschool children, would be required to accept job training and "suitable" employment.

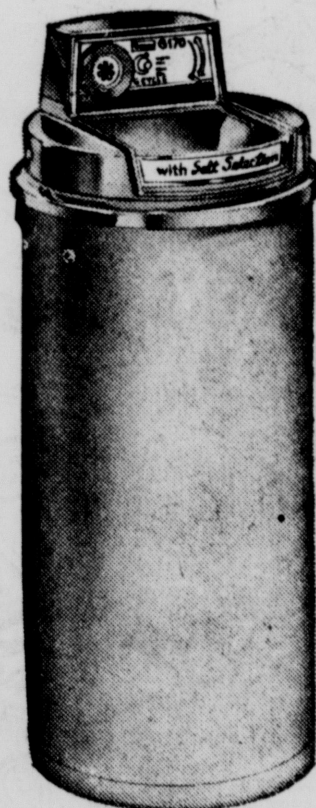

The administration says the measure will remove discrepancies in welfare payments between different regions, promote family stability and eliminate welfare inequities for persons in the lowest paying jobs.

The main opposition appears to be labor and Democratic liberals.

The AFL-CIO, backed by such stalwart liberals as Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., contend the proposed job requirements could be abused in practice and may prove meaningless for want of jobs.

Pay Tribute to Logan

Installation for County Realtors

KINGSTON He was kind, gentle and helpful to all with whom he came in contact. He was a man of principle and deep convictions, and when he felt these were being compromised he became a courageous and fearless fighter for what was right and just. May we all profit by the example Dewey Logan set for all of us."

Lochfelm emphasized the importance of the members to attend meetings of the local board and also the state association sessions to keep informed as to the latest progress in the real estate business and the laws relating to it.

Many Problems Are Facing Our Merchant Fleet

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The gracefully curved prow of the 115,000-ton tanker Manhattan sliced through the ice of the Canadian Arctic last month to open the fabled Northwest Passage.

It flew the American flag. The nuclear ship Savannah cruises the world as a showpiece for the future.

It flies the American flag. The U.S. government is doing research on big air cushion passenger vehicles designed to skim over the surface of the ocean... naval architects talk of giant cargo-carrying submarines, and 300,000-ton tankers, a fifth of a mile long... President Nixon is expected to send Congress shortly a maritime program designed to increase production of American ships.

All this might lead the casual observer to believe the U.S. Merchant Marine is a pace-setter. It isn't. In truth, it is small, mostly obsolete, and bogged down in a paralyzing maze of economic and labor-management problems.

For example: —Once the largest, the U.S. merchant fleet now is sixth in world standing.

—Two-thirds of its ships are over 20 years old.

—Only about 5 per cent of all U.S. foreign commerce is carried in American flagships.

—The United States ranks eleventh in ship construction among the nations of the world.

—Its once famous fleet of luxury passenger liners is down to a handful, and expected to get smaller.

U.S. Role Dwindles
There are many reasons for the decline. But the most important is foreign competition. Big ship-building nations such as Japan build and operate ships more cheaply than the United States because their expenses — particularly wages — are sharply lower.

To offset this competition, the United States has worked out a complicated subsidy program. But it is costly—about $200 million a year—and most observers consider it ineffective.

Marine Administrator A.E. Gibson put it this way: the U.S. merchant fleet has declined "because of its high cost compared to that of its foreign competition and because there seemed to be no other way to overcome this disadvantage except through government subsidies."

But both Gibson and Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans believe the ills of the U.S. merchant fleet can be eased, if not completely cured, through a program of modernization.

In a program unveiled last month, the two officials backed an industry-government research and development plan designed to bring this about.

It calls for a $32 million, five-year program to double the present 20-knot speed of merchant ships by the 1970s and to increase speeds to 100 knots by the 1980s through the use of exoticly-shaped hulls.

The idea is that such speeds, coupled with increased cargo capability, would boost the earning power of ships. This, in turn, would produce an incentive for private industry to build more ships.

The program also calls for a $344 million nuclear ship-building program. The nation's only nuclear-powered merchant ship—the Savannah—is now 10 years old, and Congress never has appropriated funds for the fleet of nuclear-powered merchant ships originally envisioned by sponsors of the Savannah.

Merchant Marine backers now look to President Nixon for help.

During his presidential campaign, Nixon promised to boost the amount of American trade carried in U.S. ships from 5 per cent to "over 30 per cent by the mid 1970s," partly through a stepped-up ship construction program.

Subsidies Ineffective
As for subsidies, Nixon said they have not created a modern merchant fleet despite the cost and that he would re-evaluate the program.

In contrast, the maritime unions favor a bigger subsidy program to encourage most shipbuilding and thereby create more jobs for their members. Under the present system, payments are made only to 14 ship operators who control 300 ships, or one-third of the U.S. total.

Kara Moves Away From U.S. Mainland

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (UPI)—Tropical storm Kara moved away from the U.S. mainland today, its 65-mile-per-hour winds posing an immediate danger only to shipping.

The National Hurricane Center in Miami said gale warnings along the East Coast probably would be lowered early this morning.

At 3 a.m. EDT, the storm was located near latitude 31.5 north, longitude 74 west, or about 275 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras. It was moving toward the east at 10 m.p.h.

The storm was expected to increase its forward speed and continue on an east-northeast course during the next 12 hours.

Gales extended 150 miles to the north of the center and 200 miles to the south. A low central pressure of 988 millibars of 29.18 inches was reported, and the weather bureau said Kara's winds may intensify during the next 12 hours.

Two Million Lives Lost

Nigerian Civil War Reaches a Stalemate

NIGERIAN LEADERS—Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon (L), chief of Nigerian Federal government, and Gen. Odumegwu Ojukwu, leader of secessionist Biafra, are graduates of Britain's prestige-laden Sandhurst military academy. They head up opposing forces in Nigerian civil war, bloodiest in black Africa's history. It appears now—after two years of fighting—that a clear-cut victory for either side is out of the question. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

LONDON (UPI)—The Nigerian civil war, bloodiest in black Africa's history, has ground to a stalemate after more than two years and an estimated cost of two million lives.

As in Vietnam, a clear-cut victory for either the Nigerian Federal Government or breakaway Biafra now appears unlikely.

Western officials see a political settlement at the peace table as the only alternative to even greater bloodshed, suffering and starvation.

Biafra recently accepted a federal Nigerian offer to begin new peace talks in still another attempt to end the conflict.

Yet the prospects are not favorable.

Three times in the past two years at Kampala, Uganda, Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, and Monrovia, Liberia, peace talks have failed.

Each time the obstacle was obstinacy—the federal government's rigid insistence a peace settlement must include Biafra's return to the federation and Biafra's equally rigid demand for independence.

Pope Paul VI, British Prime

Minister Harold Wilson, Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia and former French President Charles de Gaulle all have tried and failed to end the war.

Now, barring signs of readiness by both sides to compromise—and there are no such signs yet—Western officials are frankly pessimistic about prospects for an end to the conflict.

The Nigerian civil war began July 6, 1967, when federal forces invaded the country's eastern region. They did so to quell a revolt by its leaders, who had announced secession from the federation set up when Nigeria was granted independence in 1960 after 80 years of British colonial rule. The eastern leaders proclaimed creation of an independent state known as Biafra.

The bulk of the eastern region's population are Ibos, one of 12 major peoples—each with its own language and customs—who live in what is black Africa's most populous state.

The Ibos are widely considered one of the most progressive and skilled African peoples. Tens of thousands had settled in other regions of Nigeria. They were prominent in government, the civil service, industry and trade.

When he launched the invasion, Nigerian federal government chief Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon predicted it would be a "surgical police action."

The federals, better armed and vastly outnumbering the Ibos, have conquered most of the eastern region and pushed the embattled Ibos back into their own heartland.

Originally, Biafra covered an area of roughly 40,000 square miles with a population of 15 million, of whom about 10 million were Ibos.

Now the Biafrans have been squeezed back into a small sausage-shaped area of 5,000 square miles—roughly the size of Connecticut—with an estimated seven million inhabitants.

Only one city, Owerri, remains in Biafran hands. Present day Biafra is entirely surrounded by the federals. Its only contact with the outside world is a primitive airstrip at Uli.

Yet, despite superior weapons bought largely from Britain and the Soviet Union and the fact they have an estimated 100,000 men under arms, the federals have not been able to win the war.

Large scale fighting has been virtually at a standstill during the rainy season which began in April and ends in October. Federal army losses have been estimated at 20,000 killed and wounded. Biafran losses are probably at least as high. But the real tragedy of the war has been the gradual starvation of the Biafran people, cut off from outside food supplies except for a trickle hazardously flown in at night by relief planes.

U.S. Maritime Industry Looks Towards Future

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—In the 1980s the United States maritime industry may be building and using revolutionary air cushion cargo ships, possibly nuclear powered, to cross the Atlantic Ocean in 24 hours.

They will be 100 m.p.h. highly automated, shallow draft, container ships linked with land transport through terminals that do not necessarily have to be located in traditional deep-water port cities.

A hybrid of a boat and a plane, the Surface Effect Ship (SES) is expected to have as much, or more, impact on ocean commerce in the future as the Supersonic Transport (SST) and the jumbo jets of the 1970s will have on air travel.

The Army and the Navy are using small air cushion boats in Vietnam's Mekong Delta, and they are also in service as ferries on the English Channel and elsewhere.

As the developers envision them, the huge surface effect ship of the 1980s will literally ride on a bubble of air. Lift fans force air down beneath the craft's hull where it is held by catamaran-like side hulls plus bow and stern seals of flexible rubberized material similar to that used by Britain's air-cushion vessel, the Princess Margaret.

The Princess Margaret, a 130-foot, mile-a-minute English Channel ferry, carries 254 passengers and 30 cars on her 40-minute crossings between Dover and Boulogne-sur-Mer, France. She and several dozen other versions have been built by British Hovercraft Corporation, Ltd. on the Isle of Wight.

This January the U.S. Joint Surface Effect Ships Program Office (JSEPO) awarded contracts to Textron's Bell Aerosystems Company and to Aerojet General to build 100-ton, 90 m.p.h. SES test craft. Aerojet is working in California and Bell Aerosystems has opened an operation in New Orleans.

The Bell SES test craft will be 72 feet long, 33 feet wide and 25 feet high, powered by gas turbine engines designed for marine use. The Aerojet design calls for forward propulsion by water jets, while Bell will use propellers.

The technology learned from three years of development and testing of the 100-ton test craft will be used to complete an 800-ton SES by the mid-1970s. If all goes well, the first generation of 4,000 to 5,000 ton, 90 m.p.h., SES cargo ships will be built in the 1980s. After that, larger and faster civilian and military ships will be built.

Bell attaches such significance to the SES test project

Guthrie Compares Songs He Writes With His Father's

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Arlo Guthrie, 22-year-old son of the late folk singer Woody Guthrie, compares the songs he writes with his father's this way: "Well, mine are a lot longer."

It's a typical statement by Arlo Guthrie, elliptical, but true (the talking blues song that brought Arlo fame in 1967, "The Alice's Restaurant Massacre," runs 18 minutes in the short version and there's humor lurking in the background).

"Alice's Restaurant," as the song usually is called, rambles along, telling about a fellow-ship-filled Thanksgiving dinner that really happened in Stockbridge, Mass., goes on, with irony, to explain how Arlo got arrested for littering when he dumped the garbage from the dinner in a ravine because the dump was closed for the holiday, and winds up as a polemic against the draft. All the way through, it's a very funny song.

Guthrie says that "Alice's Restaurant" is a comment on a lot of scenes: at the same time it's about himself.

"Before Dylan, a singer was commenting on what was happening. It had nothing to do with him except that he was the commentator and his philosophy was a part of how he saw things. Woody was that way. This is the tradition of folk."

Guthrie really has left the tradition of outside commentator. Not only is the song "Alice's Restaurant" about him, but he's playing himself in the new movie, "Alice's Restaurant," which is based on the song.

Actually, the movie is expanded from the song to include a good deal about Arlo's life and about Alice and Ray Brock, who lived in a church in Stockbridge, Mass.

Getting People Together
Still, in some ways, Guthrie thinks his and his father's outlooks are the same. "Woody was involved with unions getting people together. He was interested in getting people together in numbers. I'm interested in getting people together with themselves. It's the same thing."

"I'm not interested in riding freight trains or doing away with Hitler. (During his roving years, Woody had taped on his guitar. "This machine shoots Fascists." I'm interested in Vietnam and Biafra, what is happening in the world now. Woody would have been interested in the same things."

Woody Guthrie died in 1967 of Huntington's Chorea, a progressive degeneration of the nervous system. He went into the hospital when Arlo, oldest of the three children of his second marriage, was 7.

"Woody used to come home all the time," Guthrie says. "We went to visit him when he couldn't make it home. We didn't compare notes on singing; we used to sing all the time. His friends would come and we'd all sing. It was groovy. I liked all his stuff."

Although Arlo took part, along with Bob Dylan, Pete Seeger,

Judy Collins and Jack Elliott, in a memorial Carnegie Hall concert in 1968 in which all the songs sung were Woody's, he says, "I guess people would rather have me do my own stuff. There aren't many people who can get away singing old stuff these days."

Guthrie doesn't intend to rest on his own old stuff, either. This year he refused to sing "Alice's Restaurant" at Newport. He's written a number of songs since that one and he sang some of those.

"People are concerned about individual performers because they're concerned about their own personalities," Guthrie says. "The more they can see through performers the more they can interpret through themselves."

"This year seems to be the year for finding out things, for preparing for the world. Those people that are prepared will be willing to accept it. Those that aren't will have to go with the old one."

"It's got nothing to do with a generation gap. I don't believe in that. There are ignorant kids and ignorant adults, beautiful kids and beautiful adults. Just because there are more beautiful kids doesn't mean there is a generation gap. The generation gap is only an excuse for not getting home at night or for not liking your kid. It's a good excuse, but it's not very realistic."

For Freedom to Learn

"There's a vibration gap, though. People want to be able to learn without being afraid of what they're going to find out and they don't want other people to put them uptight. Kids all want the same thing—to find out what's happening."

"People are taking sides these days, siding with what they believe. It is ideas that are important."

"It doesn't matter if your hair is two or three inches long or if you don't have hair." Arlo's long hair, framing his long thin face, is so curly it is almost kinky. He gets it cut in England. When he was in school and his hair was short, he only tried to comb it once a week.

"If I want to go to Cuba or North Korea to learn about things there, no one should be able to say I should not be able to go there unless it affects other people, their lives or health are in danger."

"Our ideas have to change. There are a lot of ignorant people in the world but when good things start happening, people get behind them. They instinctively know what is good even though they've been on a bad track for a long time."

"I want to see a world that isn't uptight about learning—and tension kind of drifting away from the world. There's no need for tension. You have to spend more time meditating, contemplating. Your mind is a wonderful beautiful thing. Follow it a little more often. See where it takes you when you don't decide it should go left or right? Go where it goes."

"That's one of the reasons LSD was so big. It puts you where you're not afraid of yourself. You're right there with yourself."

Some New Assurances For Premier of Laos

UPI Foreign News Analyst
The premier of Laos, Prince Souvanna Phouma has received new assurances from President Nixon that the United States will insist on withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces from Laos and Cambodia as part of any settlement of the Vietnamese War.

Phouma has put the number of North Vietnamese in Laos at 60,000.

In Cambodia Prince Norodom Sihanouk, chief of state, says the number of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese soldiers in his tiny country total 40,000. Red China, he says, has rebuffed his pleas for help to get them out.

Taken together the totals almost equal the number of North Vietnamese now believed to be operating in South Vietnam.

On Oct. 14 a Senate subcommittee in Washington will begin closed door hearings to determine the extent of U.S. military involvement in Laos and what the chances are that the United States could find itself in a Vietnam type war in Laos before any peace treaty can be signed in Paris.

Bothering the senators most is the wall of secrecy surrounding U.S. operations in Laos, which this week even extended to a ban on news photographers seeking pictures of the President and Phouma at their morning White House meeting. The ban was lifted later when the President entertained the premier at a stag dinner.

Among the questions which the senators will ask are these: What is being done to implement the Nixon doctrine of reducing U.S. military commitments in Southeast Asia?

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, who made a trip to Southeast Asia at the President's request, says nothing is being done.

What is the dollar cost of military aid to Laos?

Mansfield puts it at "hundreds of millions." Economic aid this year is to be about $45 million. The military aid figure has not been released but has been estimated at well over $200 million, and Phouma wants more.

How big a part did the United States play in recent reported successes by the Laotian army against the local Pathet Lao Communists and the North Vietnamese?

Phouma says there are no foreign troops in his country except the North Vietnamese. Officially, Washington also denies that there are any American combat forces in Laos, but it is reluctant to define what combat means.

It long has been recognized that U.S. warplanes have stepped up their attacks on the Ho Chi Minh Trail running along the Laotian eastern mountain spine. Presumably helicopters have been used to pick up downed U.S. airmen.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks opened higher today in active trading.

Hopes for a Vietnam solution and for a break in the tight money situation have been powerful medicine for stocks over the past two sessions. And there is some belief that the market's own momentum could carry it even higher. However, another feeling is that stocks may be about ready for some profit taking.

Shortly after the opening, the UPI marketwide indicator showed a gain of 0.42 per cent on 316 issues crossing the tape. There were 157 advances, and 69 declines.

Motors were mixed, as were oils and electronics. Steels showed scattered strength.

Sunbeam Corp., an early feature, traded a block of 411,700 shares at 27 up 1/2. J. J. Newberry traded a block of 41,400 shares at 29 unchanged, and Ampex Corp. 11,200 shares at 46 1/2 off 3/4.

Quotations by First Albany Corporation, members of New York Stock Exchange and American Stock Exchange, 52 Main Street, Kingston, N. Y. Sheldon Levy, resident manager.

Ex-Trooper Is Committed To Matteawan

CARMEL, N.Y. (AP)—Former State Trooper William Hilliard of Brooklyn and Lake Carmel, a murder charge hanging over his head, has been ordered committed to the state mental hospital at Matteawan by Carmel Town Judge Fred Dickinson.

Hilliard was reportedly the first New York State Trooper to be charged with murder. He was accused of slaying 18-year-old Stephen Fleming at Lake Carmel last March. On June 16 he pleaded innocent to the charge.

Tuesday night, Putnam County Sheriff Ray Weizenacker said his deputies found 17 hacksaw blades in the cells of Hilliard and another prisoner.

A sanity hearing had been held for Hilliard prior to the finding the blades. Weizenacker said the hearing found that Hilliard was incapable of standing trial.

Last summer Hilliard made headlines in connection with a bank robbery in Westchester County when a suspect in the robbery locked him in a police car and drove him into Connecticut.

Correction in Report of Marbletown Meet

A typographical error in Tuesday's Freeman deleted a sentence from a report on Zoning in Marbletown.

The line should have read that the recently formed Ad Hoc Committee for zoning in the town has charged the Marbletown Businessmen's Association against zoning with "using misrepresentation and scare tactics in its campaign to defeat the proposed zoning ordinance."

Marine League: Victory, Honor Proclamation

KINGSTON

Contending that the so-called Peace Demonstrations "by their virtue aid and comfort the Communist enemy," the Department of New York, Marine Corps League, has proclaimed the week of Nov. 9-15 American Victory With Honor Week.

The announcement was made by Gilbert E. Gray, state commandant of the Marine Corps League, following the autumn staff meeting of the Department held in Albany. Gray, who signed the resolution approved on Saturday, pointed out that the resolution noted the Marine Corps League finds the demonstrations "to be fronted by many anti-American and Leftist groups."

The resolution also noted that the Marine Corps League, Department of New York, concurs that Victory with Honor "for our fighting forces should be the uppermost thought in every American's mind."

The resolution was presented by John E. Roberts, Sunrise Detachment, Marine Corps League.

Bomb Explodes In Macy's

NEW YORK (UPI)—An incendiary device concealed in a cigarette package exploded after business hours in Macy's department store Tuesday evening slightly injuring two detectives called to dismantle it.

Police were unable to furnish any information about the tiny fire bomb except to describe it as being almost identical to five others which exploded in the huge 34th Street store Saturday night to Sunday morning. The FBI, called in after the first explosions during the weekend, also declined to comment on the case. Macy's security police discovered the latest device at about 7:20 p.m., about an hour and 20 minutes after the store closed for the day.

The store police carried the bomb, found in the pocket of a woman's coat on a rack on the second floor, to the stairwell of the nearest fire exit. Two bomb squad men were bending over the bomb to defuse it when it went off with a flash of flame and smoke. They were carried out of range while firemen extinguished the small fire.

Standards Will Be Proposed To Emit Radiation From TV Sets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Government plans to propose standards allowing emission of radiation from color television sets at a level five times higher than recommended by government scientists, it was learned today.

Language in the proposal, signed by Chris A. Hansen, commissioner of the Environmental Control Administration, describes it as the lowest standard now practical, but promises possible reductions in the future.

The new rules, first to seek limits on X-radiation from television sets, are scheduled to be published Thursday in the Federal Register. They would not become legally enforceable until a second publication at least 30 days later.

The proposed standards jibe with those suggested to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare by a 13-member technical committee which had received recommendations from government scientists.

They stem from a law enacted last year following disclosures of erratic and sometimes high emission of X-rays from color TV sets.

Government scientists have told Congress there is no evidence of direct harm to humans from radiation emitted by color television sets. But they also said that radiation accumulates in the body so any exposure brings a person closer to the unknown point where genes are mutated, possibly causing damage to future generations.

Under the proposed standards, color television sets manufactured after next Jan. 1 may not emit radiation at more than .5 milliroentgens per hour measured within two inches of a color set operated on a 130 volt electric line.

To that extent, the new standards agree with the recommendations submitted to the technical committee last June by scientists of the government's Bureau of Radiological Health.

However, the bureau scientists would have cut the allowable emission to 20 per cent of that level, .1 milliroentgen per hour, in sets manufactured after July 1, 1971.

Trespass Charge

James Clark, 23, of 408 Albany Avenue, was arrested late Tuesday night by Kingston police on a charge of unlawful trespass in the second degree. He was held for an appearance in City Court.

According to police, Clark was found in a building at 911 North Front Street, owned by the Herzog Supply Company, Inc.

In the standards to be published Thursday, the only changes after January will be tightening of conditions under which the .5 milliroentgens per hour must be met.

Hansen, the HEW official whose signature appears on the proposed regulations, could not be reached for comment.

However, a copy made available to a reporter described the standard as the best "reasonably attainable and technically feasible" which will reduce the electronic product radiation from television receivers to the lowest level practicable at this time.

"This standard will be reviewed as technology improves and the radiation limit will be reduced accordingly," it said.

Sheriff's Staff To Show Two Films

LAKE KATRINE A filmed program will be presented at the Lake Katrine School at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, as part of the continuing efforts of Sheriff William B. Martin to prevent crime in Ulster County.

A group of interested parents in the Kingston School District (Consolidated) are sponsoring the program, to which all mothers are invited.

The sheriff's department will show two films—Attack—which portrays a woman's defense against attack, and Child Molesting, which relates important information for children against being accosted by strangers.

Charles Corcoran, coordinator for the program, described both films as "hard-hitting and unabashed." The sponsors advise that children attending the program should be accompanied by their parents or adult guardian, and they note that the films are not recommended for children under 12 years.

Make your life less taxing with a Deferred Income Bankers Passbook

Defer Taxes On Savings Interest For Up To 10 Years.

In a high tax bracket? Planning to retire in a few years? The State of New York National Bank is pleased to present the Deferred Income Bankers Passbook, designed for people who want to save for the future without paying taxes today.

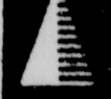

Your Deferred Income Bankers Passbook permits you to delay paying taxes on savings interest until a specified maturity date of 2 to 10 years from the opening of the account. The account guarantees an annual interest rate of 5%, compounded and credited quarterly. You earn interest on your interest. Your money grows, and nothing goes for taxes until the maturity date—when you may be in a lower tax bracket.

The legal basis: Since the holder of a Deferred Income Bankers Passbook cannot make any withdrawals of principal or interest until the maturity date, except in cases of emergency, it is the opinion of our tax counsel that income taxes on the interest can be deferred for the length of the account.

If you wish, you can spread the taxes on your interest over several years, by opening several Deferred Income Bankers Passbook accounts with varying maturity dates. In this way, you can increase the availability of savings and capitalize on different periods of anticipated lower income and taxes.

The maturity date may be extended once at the request of the depositor and with the consent of the bank, at the guaranteed 5% interest rate, but not beyond 10 years from the opening date of the account. In addition to the initial deposit of $500, further deposits of $50 may be made at any time until 90 days before the maturity date. For your convenience, balances remaining on deposit at maturity become regular Bankers Passbook deposits.

Enjoy less taxes today and more savings tomorrow. Open a Deferred Income Bankers Passbook account now.

You'll find a banker at
The State of New York National Bank.

In his audience will be more than a hundred scholars and specialists on Latin America from throughout the United States who will be attending a two-day conference on current issues in the economic, social, and political development of Latin America. More than thirty lectures, art exhibits, and music and dance programs will be presented at the New Paltz college over the next eight weeks for the International Festival focusing this year on Mexico and Brazil. All Festival events are open to the public without charge.

Red Hook Migrant Group Elects New Officers

RED HOOK—Officers were elected at the final meeting of the Red Hook Area Migrant Committee. Forty persons attended the session last week at the Day Care Center, Tivoli. New officers elected to serve next year are Mrs. Lewis Priven, chairman; Mr. Sidney Mead, vice chairman; and Mrs. Robert Finnell, treasurer. A secretary will be named at a later date. Mrs. Howard Sargent was appointed to head the corps of volunteers providing transportation of migrant children to the Day Care Center. A committee was also formed to look into the possibility of other quarters for the center in the coming year. In evaluating the program at the Day Care Center it was found that the volunteer teachers had emphasized increasing the verbal skills of the children and expanding their vocabulary. This was done through games, stories, music, and identification of objects by touch. The children were also encouraged to talk in complete sentences. They experimented with water color paints and crayons, learning the names of colors and identifying different shapes. Manipulative skills were stressed through the use of puzzles and toys, and play dough. The youngsters also learned something about being part of a group. Volunteer teachers serving in the program were the Mmes. Judy Priven, Ann Selinger, Patsy Walsh, Kathleen Lax, and Margaret Shaffer. Other services were offered to migrant families by the committee. Mrs. Clement Glowienka reported that 12 women from the migrant group have been attending her sewing classes each Monday evening at St. John's Reformed Church, Upper Red Hook. Mrs. Leonard Neils, R.N., of the Red Hook Area Migrant Committee cooperated with the Dutchess County Health Department in holding the first Health-In for migrant workers and their families at the Cole farm. Mrs. Neils recruited eight volunteers from the committee including four volunteer nurses, to help man the clinic. Other Health-In's are planned throughout October. Mrs. Sargent, in charge of transportation, said that 20 volunteers had served as drivers. Total mileage accumulated so far in getting the children to the Center and back to their homes was 2,750 miles. The Day Care Center will continue to operate through the month of October.

Student Affairs Ellenville Topic

ELLENVILLE Teachers participated by Morris Kaufman, secondary principal of the Ellenville Central Schools, conducted a special staff meeting related to the theme of Student Affairs recently.

Approximately 60 members of the high school faculty were involved in this session which explored a variety of issues that are of concern to their students. The focus was on questions such as, "What are the causes of student unrest?", "What are your views on student dress, student government, and the right to dissent?", "How relevant is the curriculum to youth?"

Teachers participated by expressing their views and exchanged ideas about how to make school work more meaningful to the student.

Dr. Jack L. Roosa, district superintendent, Ulster County Board of Cooperative Educational Services, was invited to introduce and discuss ideas related to student affairs. Dr. Roosa arranged for Leon Greenberg of the BOCES staff to present this information to the Ellenville faculty. Since Dr. Roosa's attendance at a Drive-In Conference for Chief School Administrators in Albany last month, he has been actively involved in projects dealing with the high school student.

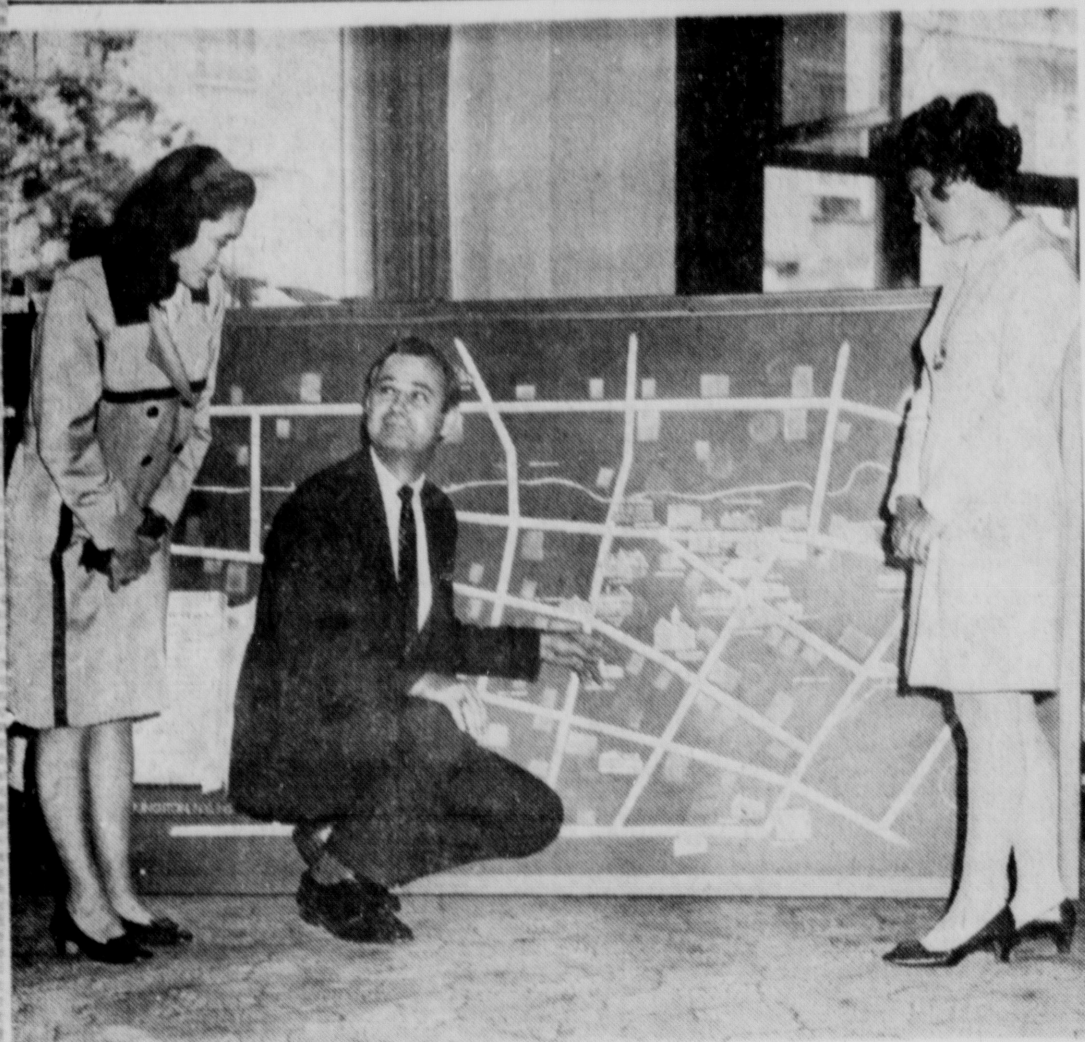

Ellenville staff members displayed enlightened attitudes about contemporary issues and explained how these events influence the attitudes and behaviors of their students. The faculty did discuss the issues and are seeking ways to relate more effectively to students.

According to Kaufman, the staff has definite interest in and enthusiasm about the positive attitudes they find among their own Ellenville High School students. He said that the times are changing and it is important that "we look carefully at our situation in an effort to involve our students in these changes."

County in Consumer Poll

A consumer survey is being conducted in Ulster County by the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan. Local interviewers are Mrs. Walter Herring of Ulster Park and Mrs. George Carter of Bloomington.

The study is being carried out across the nation to determine changes in consumer motives, attitudes and expectations toward the economy. The surveys are designed to provide information on changing trends in the economy useful to policy-makers in business and government.

STOCKADE MAP — A pictorial map of uptown Kingston and the historic stockade area has been completed by the Junior League of Kingston, Inc., and Hurley artist James Kaman and is on display at the Ulster County Savings Bank, Wall Street, during the month of October. Putting the finishing touches on the display are Mrs. Charles Gaylon, Kaman and Mrs. Robert Rolfe. After the bank exhibit the Junior League will seek a permanent place to display the detailed map. RED CROSS INSTRUCTION — Miss Joan Moran, authorized Red Cross water safety instructor, is shown conducting a course for Red Cross water safety instructors at the State University College, New Paltz. More than 225 water safety instructors are authorized by the Ulster County Chapter to teach progressive swimming and lifesaving courses in Ulster County. Courses in rowing, canoeing, outboard boating, and sailing are being provided by an increasing number of facilities under the direction of the Ulster County Chapter. J. Brian Steeves of Kingston serves as volunteer chairman for water safety and small craft safety. During the 1968-69 season more than 4200 persons satisfactorily completed Red Cross water safety courses in Ulster County. (Shellengerger photo).

The services of the American Red Cross are never more evident than during the chaos of a natural disaster. Imagine the immediate needs of an Ulster County community involved in a disastrous fire, a devastating flood, an earthquake, transportation wreck, explosion, epidemics, hurricanes, tornadoes or a forest fire.

The Red Cross is ever ready to respond, to provide emergency facilities, food, clothing, shelter, medical and nursing or hospital care on the basis of evident need. After an emergency, the Red Cross stays on the job to assist families and individuals in meeting disaster-caused needs. Red Cross assistance to disaster sufferers is given, not loaned. No repayment of any kind is asked or expected.

The availability of this service and others involving first aid and education and maintenance of the Ulster County Chapter is supported by an allocation from the Community Chest. The Community Chest is currently conducting its fund drive to raise $411,000 to support Red Cross and 14 other county agencies. A fair-share contribution by everyone will assure that these vital community services are continued.

Solferino in a booklet that aroused the conscience of the world. He called for volunteer relief societies in each country.

She helped the wounded in the Civil War and in the Franco-Prussian War.

The first major test of the American Red Cross was in the Spanish-American war 1898. Its Congressional Charter and later reorganization provided a community, regional and national structure, and led to the development of services and training programs for volunteers.

These include nurses enrollment, first aid instruction, health nursing program, life saving and water safety instruction, Junior Red Cross and others. After World War I, its aid to veterans started, including counseling, emergency financing, vets hospital social work and others. To this was added the civilian blood donor program.

Services to the Armed Forces and veterans includes furnishing volunteer aid to sick and wounded, providing a medium of communication between men in battle areas and their families and help to inductees, career members of the Armed Forces and their families to resolve problems created by separation from family and homeland.

The American Red Cross has 3,500 chapters and 2,000,000 volunteer workers. Some 1,600 chapters now raise some or part of their fund requirements in partnership with local United Funds or Community Chests.

Ever Ready to Respond --- American Red Cross Slogan

Duant was inspired by the example of Florence Nightingale, who had recruited 38 trained nurses for the wounded in the Crimean War—1854-56. In 1863, a committee of five, including Duant invited delegates from other nations to meet in Geneva to discuss the idea. As a result 16 nations sent 36 delegates to the session Sept. 1863, and it became the start of the Red Cross.

From this meeting emerged, a year later, the first Geneva Convention, an international treaty to protect sick and wounded soldiers the first international effort to introduce humanitarian principles into warfare.

Among the great names in the cause was Clara Barton, the Angel of the Battlefield, who was the leader of the American Red Cross from 1881 to 1904.

Fish Elated Over Water Appropriation

POUGHKEEPSIE

"At least a partial victory for water clean up," Rep. Hamilton Fish, Jr. today called the $600 million appropriation passed by the House for the funding of the Clean Waters Restoration Act. It was raised approximately three times from the original $214 million administration budget request.

Fish, a champion of federal responsibility and leadership in the fight for clean water, was a leader in the effort to boost the appropriation to the full $1 billion authorized under the 1966 Clean Waters Restoration Act.

"Consistent short Federal funding has resulted in severe hardship in New York State and the 28th Congressional District, and federal financial foot dragging is setting the entire nation back in the fight to clean up our waters," Congressman Fish said.

He pointed out that New York State, through an agreement with the federal government, prefinances sewage disposal projects and the state has already committed $150 million to cover the unpaid federal share.

"With full federal funding, sewage projects are entitled to 50 or 55 per cent federal construction grants, but are presently receiving an average of only four per cent. This also means that municipalities should only pay 15 to 20 per cent of the cost of construction, but are being hit for 40 per cent. This means the cost load is falling on the last person who can afford it — the local property taxpayer.

"We fought for the full billion dollar funding, and lost," Congressman Fish said, "but our efforts have resulted in a substantial increase, and I believe establishes a record that the nation is deeply concerned about the polluted condition of our waters."

Body Recovered

DUNKIRK, N.Y. (AP) — Police Tuesday recovered the body of a 17-year-old boy who was swept into Lake Erie last Thursday after being knocked off a breakwall by a large wave.

Two patrolmen touring the waterfront found the body of Barry Wortham of Dunkirk floating about one-quarter mile from the breakwall.

LAKE MINNEWASKA Teachers from Ulster County will gather at the Cliff House here Friday to confer with state leaders in education and state legislators under the sponsorship of the New York State Teachers' Association.

State Senator Jay P. Rolison, Assemblyman H. Clark Bell and Teachers' Association president Mrs. Catherine O.C. Barrett will head the list of dignitaries attending the day-long conference.

An annual event in most sections of the state, the conference of more than 7,000 teachers in the South Eastern Zone is being planned and set up by local leaders with State Teachers' Association assistance in five locations in the Mid-Hudson area.

The Minnewaska conference will have the added attraction of six workshops on various services of the association. Educational travel, legal assistance, and promotion of professional standards will be discussed. Educators will meet with area legislators in the afternoon.

Teachers are given the opportunity to exchange ideas with colleagues, learn of new developments in the world of education, inspect new books and teaching aids and hear directly from leaders in various fields.

Students, meanwhile, are given a long weekend, with schools on Friday being closed.

Explosions Rip Headquarters

BEIRUT (UPI) — A series of explosions today heavily damaged the Beirut headquarters of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), the Arab world's top guerrilla group. At least 10 persons were reported injured.

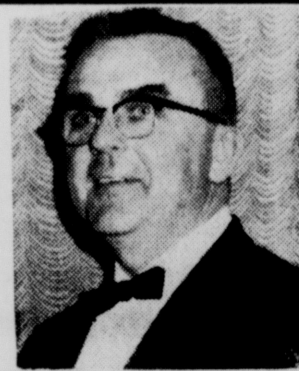

The chairman of the Beirut office, Chafic el-Hout, blamed an alleged Israeli agent for the incident. "We accuse Israeli intelligence," he said. Nine persons were hospitalized.

El-Hout told reporters an unidentified Dutch journalist had sought permission to take photographs of the PLO building a short time before the blasts but was refused permission.

El-Hout said the journalist then went to a multi-story apartment building about 75 yards away where he set up a rocket launcher and fired six rockets at the PLO building.

DeWitt - Gill Wedding Announced

MRS. WALTER A. GILL JR.
(Lakeside Studio)

Miss Darlene M. DeWitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Preston C. DeWitt, 1996 Codwise Street, Kingston, became the bride of Walter A. Gill Jr., USMC, Camp Lejeune, N.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Gill, Palm Bay, Fla., on Saturday, Oct. 4, at Immanuel Lutheran Church, 22 Livingston Street, Kingston.

The Rev. Gary L. Mehl of Immanuel Lutheran Church officiated at the double ring ceremony. J. Charles Brand, organist, provided traditional wedding selections. Arrangements of white gladioli and pink chrysanthemums decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a skimmer satin gown styled with fitted empire bodice, bateau neckline, long fitted sleeves and soft princess style skirt which terminated into a full circular chapel train. The bodice, skirt, and sleeves were all trimmed with Alencon lace. Her Cathedral length bouffant veil of French silk illusion was attached to a cluster of small flowers and satin loops. She carried a Colonial cluster of miniature white carnations, stephanotis and baby pink roses.

Mrs. Terry Wilber of Lake Katrine was matron of honor for her sister. She wore a Dutch blue floor-length gown of chiffon over linen, styled with a fitted empire bodice accented with satin cummerbund, high medallion neckline, long fitted sleeves and sheath skirt. A large chignon bow held her four tier shoulder length veil and she carried a nosegay of pale pink pompons and deep pink roses.

Mrs. James Haley of Saugerties, aunt of the bride, was an attendant in a romance blue gown identical in styling to that of the matron of honor. She carried a nosegay of pale pink pompons.

Cynthia L. DeWitt, sister of the bride, and Susan Gill, sister of the bridegroom, were junior bridesmaids. They wore pale blue satin gowns, similar in styling to those of the other attendants. Small matching satin bows held their veils and they carried nosegays of pale pink pompons.

Terry Wilber of Lake Katrine, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was best man. Raymond Smith, Southgate, Mich., brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was usher.

A reception was held at Capri '400' Restaurant, Port Ewen.

For her wedding trip to Lake George and Lake Placid in the Adirondack Mountains, the bride selected a beige tweed coat and dress ensemble with black accessories and a tulleman-colored carnation corsage.

The bride, a graduate of Immanuel Lutheran School and Kingston High School, is employed at IBM, Kingston. Her husband, an alumnus of Kingston High School, is serving in U.S. Marine Corps, stationed at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Mrs. Gill will reside with her parents during her husband's tour of duty.

Cantaloupe-Hartnett Vows Exchanged

MRS. JOHN L. HARTNETT (Lakeside Studio)

Miss Frances Ann Cantaloupe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Cantaloupe of 785 Lincoln Park Place, Kingston, became the bride of John L. Hartnett, Route 4, Box 218 A, Kingston, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hartnett of 119 Pine Street Holyoke, Mass., Saturday, Oct. 11 at St. Joseph's Church, Kingston.

The Rev. Alfred Pizzuto officiated at the double ring ceremony. James Sweeney, organist, accompanied Donald Sweeney who sang traditional wedding selections. Arrangements of white gladioli decorated the altar and white satin bows marked the family pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A-line gown of shantung with Venice lace banding the high neckline the long sleeves, and bordering the hemline. A stylized headpiece held her four-tiered silk illusion veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of white chrysanthemums and white pompons with variegated ivy, centered with a corsage of white chrysanthemums.

Miss Sara Cantaloupe of Lincoln Park, Place, Kingston, and Mrs. Janet York, Pinewood Manor, Essex Junction, Vt., both sisters of the bride, served as maid and matron of honor, respectively. velvet gowns styled with scooped necklines and full cuffed sleeves. The empire waistlines and sleeves featured applique of silk flower braid. Stylized headpieces held their tulle flirtation veils and they carried cascade bouquets of blended daisy pompons in yellow and butterscotch with bronze pompons.

Attendants were Mrs. Donna Sicheri, Mrs. Mary Lou Arold, Mrs. Shirley Gollnick, and Mrs. Veronica Natoli, all of Kingston. Their gold velvet gowns were fashioned identically to those of the honor attendants and they carried cascade bouquets of blended daisy pompons in yellow and butterscotch with bronze pompons.

Miss Sheryl Lynn York, niece of the bride, Essex Junction, Vt., was flower girl. She wore an emerald green velvet gown, fashioned similarly to those of the other attendants. She carried a white princess basket filled with yellow and white petals with green ribbon.

A reception for 130 guests was held at Capri '400' Restaurant in Port Ewen.

For her wedding trip to Quebec, Canada, the bride selected a brown knit A-line dress with matching accessories and a corsage of white chrysanthemums.

Brecht Play at Vassar College

The Vassar College Experimental Theatre will present "The Good Woman of Setzuan" by Bertolt Brecht as its first play of the current season. There will be an open dress rehearsal in Avery Hall at 8 p.m. on Thursday and regular performances at 8:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

The play was originally written in the 1930s when Brecht and his wife were in Scandinavia as refugees from the Nazis. It was planned for and dedicated to Brecht's wife, the distinguished actress, Helen Weigel. The American premiere was given at Hamline University in St. Paul. The most important theatrical production in this country featured Zero Mostel and Uta Hagen at the Phoenix Theatre in New York City.

The Vassar production is under the direction of Clinton Atkinson, lecturer in drama. The lead is played by Ellen Mease, a senior from Dallas. The cast also includes two graduate assistants making their debut on the Vassar stage: John Timothy Hamline and Karl Weakley. Scenery is by Tadeusz Gesek, associate professor of drama, and the costumes are by Mary Anne Page, a sophomore from Houston. Area residents are invited to telephone the theater office for tickets which are available without charge.

Sweet-Sour Taste

Nations have agreed for centuries on one thing—the goodness of sweet-sour dishes. Fixing food with this sharp opposition of tastes is recipe history that seems to have originated in many countries—East and West. And while environment varies the foods and their forms, changing flavor and appearance in each regional dish, what is basic to all is the sweetness of white or brown sugar and molasses in relation to the sourness of vinegar, wine, or acid fruit. Native foods may be ground, the form used for Chinese sweet-and-sour beef balls; chopped, as in our vegetable piccalilli and chowchow relishes; or cut into pieces like the Italian mustard fruits. The contrasting sugar and vinegar or wine taste may be in the sauce, used orientally for the traditional sweet-sour fish. Or in a glaze, making piquant morsels of tiny pork ribs which in Hong Kong the British fried in batter. Molasses or brown sugar with vinegar or lemon juice are essential to marinades which make spiced pot roasts special in Israel, and in Sweden, along with Sauterbraten, of course, originated in Germany, along with sweet-sour red cabbage, wilted lettuce, and hot potato salad. These and others like the ubiquitous Dutch coleslaw and original Russian beet borsch have been adopted or adapted by many different nations agreeing on a good thing.

Halloween Recipe

Halloween is merrily celebrated in many nations as the eve of Halloween: All Saints' Day. It is also the time when pre-Christian Druids believed that Saman, lord of death, called forth wicked souls — ghosts and witches — which presently trick if not treated. A just-right dessert for convivial saint or sinner affairs could be an angel pie shell with devilish chocolate filling. The shell can be made ahead, from a hard-meringue recipe that calls for 4 tablespoons of sugar to each egg white. This proportion of sugar and long slow baking produces crisp, crusted meringues. Spread the beaten mixture over the bottom and more thickly up sides of pie plate. Bake in 275 degree oven about 1 hour, until dry but still angel white. For the devilish part, use a chocolate pie filling mix, replacing part of the milk with dark rum and adding powdered coffee to taste.

Winter Perspiration

Women face perspiration problems in winter, too. The tendency is to bundle up too much for outdoors and then get too warm inside. Select clothes with removable jackets and sweaters for more indoor comfort. Also experiment to find liquid or creamform of antiperspirant for additional protection.

Kingston Academy Reunion Held

On Sunday, Oct. 5, many graduates of the Old Kingston Academy assembled at Governor Clinton Hotel for their annual reunion. A dinner took place in the Crystal Room, after which the group sang "Alma Mater Old Kingston Academy," composed by Sam Scudder who accompanied the singers at the piano. Additional musical selections were provided by Mr. Scudder and violinist George Muller, son of the late Professor Muller who was well known to most Kingstonians of that era.

Many people travelled great distances to be present. Records showed that Mrs. Alice Coles Painter was the earliest graduate in 1895. She had planned to attend but was prevented due to illness. Those in attendance were: 1915 — Harold Bernstein, Harry DuBois Frey, Dorothy Fessenden Rodgers and husband, Arpha Lawson Craft, Raymond Craft, Alberta Craig Ashley, Olive Hammond Harling, Albert Britt, Louise Thomas Iseman and husband, J. Watson Wheeler, Ruth Bushnell Brinnier, James Black and wife and son, William Anderson Carl, John Fitzgerald, Lee Harford Randall.

1914 — Elizabeth Wilkes Leak: Florence Wheeler Spencer, Bertha Waterman, Walter Schmid, Louise Snyder Flanagan, Alice Kinkade.

1913 — Dr. George Vogt, Frank Elmendorf and wife, Lester Decker and wife, Elizabeth Stafford Diamond, Edith Case Murphy and husband, Ethel Parslow Heiselman and husband. 1912 — Archibald Leighton, Frank Jagger and wife, Mathilda Martin. 1911 — Evelyn Rosa, Marion Wheeler Smith, Pearl Rightmyer, Harry Halverson and wife, Dorothy Dana Leighton. 1910 — Helen Turner.

Margaret Howard, Loretta Terpening Jaminet, Edson L. Wood. 1909 — Samuel Scudder 1908 — Lucinda Merritt 1907 — Bess Carl Fessenden 1905 — Almira Boice Hulsair, Frances J. Osterhoudt, Bess Winnie Sutro. 1904 — Mary Coles Service 1903 — Grace de la Montange Keefe 1902 — Margaret Loughran Treadwell, Jane Lundy Hall. The Kingston High School class of 1916 was represented by Margaret Riseley

Resseguie, H. LeRoy Gill, Nellie and Harry Elmendorf, George Muller and Ruth Vignes Drake. Also in attendance were Celeste Keefe Porter, Alma Frommer, Catherine Miller, Lillian Campbell, Rowena Donaldson Moate and daughter, Marion Dana, Jeanette Dressel Hollingsworth and Emelia Riccobono Weyhe. Mrs. Crosswell Sheeley of KHS, class of 1933, was a guest also. The 1970 reunion will take place on the first Sunday in October.

This Is 'Eat Out' Month

It's In to Eat Out in October. More than 370,000 U.S. businesses employing nearly three and a half million people are celebrating National Restaurant Month during October — and, in a way, so are the 58 million Americans who "eat out" this month. Marking the 50th anniversary of the founding of the National Restaurant Association (NRA) which represents the foodservice industry is the upbeat theme, "It's In to Eat Out."

Food Preservation. Here are some commonly asked questions about food preservation, says Louise K. Breitung, Extension Home Economist. 1. I have been told that using iodized salt in canning tomatoes will cause them to spoil. Is this true? Many canning directions suggest using uniodized salt when canning acid foods because there have been cases where the iodine was precipitated in the acid solution leaving small pepper-like spots on the surface of home, which is 20 per cent of all the food produced in the U.S. The industry spends over $700 million each year to buy equipment and is a major market for furniture, cleaning supplies, air conditioning, and construction industries. Heilman said that more and more people will be eating out in the future as growing numbers want to eat out as a diversion rather than as a necessity.

Look Here Mrs. Homemaker

There are no special recipes or directions needed for canning food without sugar. All you need to do is substitute water for syrup called for in the recipe. Because sugar tends to firm the tissues of the fruit and prevent sloughing, you may find a softer texture in foods canned without sugar. 2. Is it possible to can fruits without sugar? What adaptations should I make in the canning procedure? 3. How can I freeze potatoes? We have a huge freezer and our basement is too warm to keep potatoes successfully for any length of time. Raw potatoes generally do not freeze well since freezing produces textural changes which result in a spongy product. French fries and stuffed baked potatoes can generally be frozen satisfactorily but should be kept for only one month or less. 4. I washed and packed and froze some sweet corn. But when I went to eat it, the corn has an off flavor. What happened? Enzymes are regulators in plants (and meats) which bring foods to the peak of ripeness but unless the enzymes are inactivated or causing changes in color, texture, and flavor as a result of being over ripe. Freezing slows enzyme activity so that meat and some fruits can be frozen with little or no control of the enzymes. Heat (called scalding) inactivates enzymes and is widely used to prevent quality loss in frozen vegetables. For information on scalding, consult the bulletin, Handbook for Freezing Foods, available from the Ulster County Home Economics Division at 74 John St., Kingston, N.Y. 12401 for 50 cents.

Can tomatoes be frozen successfully, not for slicing or salads, but stewed or as juice. So if you have lots of space in your freezer, and little time for the lengthier canning process, you can freeze tomatoes. For Juice: Wash, sort and trim vine-ripened tomatoes. Cut in quarters or eighths and simmer 5 to 10 minutes. Press through a sieve. Season with one teaspoon of salt to each quart of juice. Pour into freezer containers with a wide top opening, allowing one inch of space at the top of the quart. Seal and freeze. Stewed Tomatoes: Remove stem ends, peel and quarter ripe tomatoes. Cover and cook until tender (10 to 20 minutes). Place the pan containing the tomatoes in cold water to cool. Pack into wide topped freezing containers, leaving one inch head space per quart, one-half inch per pint. Seal and freeze.

FURRIER ARTHUR PHAFF says when a man buys his first fur coat he usually starts off with something comparatively inexpensive like this off white nutria ($595). A matching hat also is available. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

MR. AND MRS. LEO GENTNER of Port Ewen are pictured aboard the "Oceanic" enroute to Freeport and Nassau in the Bahamas. The trip was made in conjunction with their 30th wedding anniversary celebrated October 11.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: As soon as we notice the gauge is on the quarter mark, we tie a facial tissue around the horn ring. Not only will it warn each other that we are getting low on gas, but it will remind us to stop and fill up when we are near our regular station. Mrs. Fred Galante

Copyright, 1969, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Dear Heloise: When you're moving, there are so many things to wrap before packing that I decided there just had to be better system. I really eased my problem by getting boxes from the grocery stores that have dividers in them (the kind that glasses of jelly, etc., come in), and all I had to do was set each glass right in the little section. There was no need to wrap first. This really saves so much time and effort. Mrs. Nobi Jones

Dear Heloise: After buying a new end table, we looked for large coasters to protect the finish when we set down our coffee mugs and other glasses with large bases. There were none to be found in the stores in the size we needed. So, my husband got the brilliant idea of buying nine-inch "indoor-outdoor" carpet tiles and cutting them in quarters. They are not only attractive and inexpensive, but come in many colors to suit any decor. The foam padding on the bottom makes them skidproof, and since they can be washed easily, there's no worry about stains. We got a dozen coasters at a nominal cost and it took only ten minutes cutting time to make them. Mrs. G. L. Barlow

Dear Heloise: Here's how my daughter and I warn each other to watch the gas gauge in our car (which we share).

Ad Hoc Committee for Zoning in Marblatown

WE LIKE HOTDOGS TOO But we'd rather not have a hot-dog stand in our back yard. Or a gas station. Or a cement factory. That's why we're supporting the proposed Marblatown zoning ordinance. Won't you voice your support at Thursday night's zoning meeting at Marblatown Elementary School. It's the only way to keep hot-dogs in their place.

Military Hero to Speak at Israel Bond Banquet

ELLENVILLE—Colonel Immanuel Shakked, outstanding Israeli military hero, who played a key role in the Northern Command of the Israeli Army as a Brigade

PWP Slates Installation on Saturday Night

The Kingston Chapter of Parents Without Partners will hold its installation dinner for new officers Saturday night, Oct. 18, at the Capri 400 in Port Even.

To date, the ticket committee has sold 90 tickets for the event. Members of other state chapters will attend. Tickets will not be available at the door, a group spokesman said.

Ticket committee members include Frieda Whipple, Mary Paige and Charlotte Rowles.

Another event of the PWP will be coffee and conversation hour Friday night, Oct. 17, at the Artcraft Camera Shop, 694 Broadway. This will begin at 8 p.m.

Commander during the Six Day War of 1967, will be the principal speaker at the Israel Bond "Man of the Year" banquet honoring Leon Greenberg.

The banquet will be held at 6:30 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 26, at The Fallsview, under the auspices of the State of Israel Bond Committees of Sullivan and Ulster Counties. Greenberg is president and general manager of the Monticello Raceway Association and secretary of the Airport Commission. He is being honored "for his many years of dedicated service in behalf of humanity at home and abroad," according to David Levinson, general chairman of the Israel Bond campaign. Col. Shakked has been Commander of Israeli forces in the Beisan and Jordan Valleys, the current scene of intensive enemy shelling and guerrilla activity. He joined the Northern Command in 1964 as Operations Officer.

For two years prior to that time, he served in the Training Command, after studying at the U. S. Marine college at Quantico, Virginia. From 1959 to 1961, he served as a battalion commander in the Israeli paratroops.

Born in Jerusalem in 1930, Colonel Shakked began his military career when he graduated from high school in 1948. He joined the Palmach, the striking force of Haganah, the Jewish defense corps, and saw action in Jerusalem and the Negev during the War of Independence.

He advanced through the ranks, and was company commander in an infantry battalion in 1955, then he was decorated for bravery by General Moshe Dayan, who was then Chief of Staff. In 1956, he transferred to the paratroops, and fought in the Sinai Peninsula during the Sinai Campaign that year.

In announcing Col. Shakked's forthcoming appearance, Levinson stressed the importance of economic development, aided by Israel Bonds, to the future of Israel as a spiritual and cultural center as well as a thriving democracy.

"The history of the past few years has demonstrated that a sound economy is the basis for Israel's progress and a bulwark against the consequences of crisis and unrest," he said. "On industrialized nations in its part as well as other goods and services, Israel's economic progress has been emphasized that, without the sound economy from $250,000,000 to $2,857,000,000 in the past has been a crucial factor in its capacity to survive the years, Israel could not have found the strength to meet the Israel Bonds have played an important part in helping to meet the challenges of an accelerated pace, and nature which it has had to develop trade between Israel and the United States, with the represents a vital key in the balance of this trade favoring achieving that objective."

Since the inception of the Israel Bond drive in 1951, America, in 1968, Israel imported $477,000,000 in goods and for a record total of Israel Bond drive, the State reported $256,000,000, in successful event of its kind ever by any other young developing country. He said that Israel is including textiles, diamonds, food held in this area."

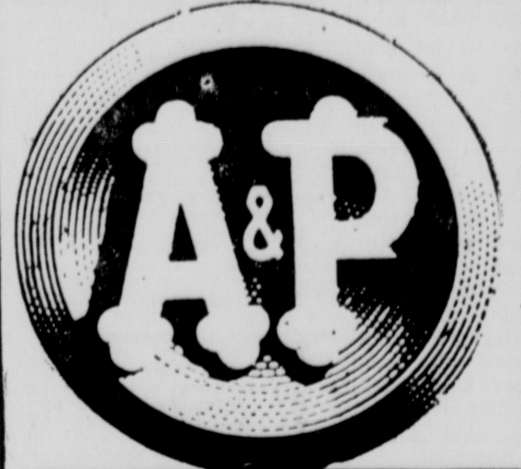

Further information and reservations may be obtained at Israel Bond headquarters, Ellenville.

Levinson also pointed out that and prosper." Levinson noted, "That progress must be continued at an accelerated pace, and nature which it has had to develop trade between Israel and the United States, with the represents a vital key in the balance of this trade favoring achieving that objective."

New Paltz Site to Be Cooler Come Summer

NEW PALTZ Life in the tallest office building in New Paltz may be a bit nicer next summer, following planned completion of work on a ventilation system now being let for bids.

The 10-story Faculty Office Tower of the State University College here was shorted in an air conditioning system when built some two years ago, leaving workers to bake in the heat of summer as the sun poured through the huge south and west windows.

A cut in the college's budget left the sealed building without air conditioning, but the state announced Tuesday that bids are being accepted on an estimated $200,000 project to add ventilation equipment.

Donald Kent, spokesman for the college, said after the tower was completed in early 1968, workers sat in an "oven" without the cooling breeze produced by air conditioners.

The project, expected to be completed by March, 1970, will also include heating and ventilation for the college's Humanities building, a three-story structure with basement.

Kent said a second 10-story tower is planned for the campus in the near future but he did not know if air conditioning is planned as in the first tower before the budget cut.

Carpet Time in Kingston.. And Dealers Have Them

The Latest Shaggy Rug Story-- They Top the '70 Carpet Fashion

Have you heard the latest, shaggy rug story? Well, if you haven't you should, because shaggy rugs are the latest!

When it comes to 1970 carpet and rug fashions, the shags are rampant. In the innumerable shag lines being shown in carpet stores this year you can expect to see every variety of shag texture conceivable.

You will find "restrained," "civilized" shags. You will also find thick and wild "savage" shags. And all the variations in between. They are made in a wide range of fibers — nylons, wools, and acrylics. However, the polyester introductions seem to pre-dominate.

There are shags for the living room, dining room, bedroom — and you will even see some of new developments in tufting machinery and flocking. Spanish tile designs and other Mediterranean motifs are noteworthy in these multi-level textures.

In the overall color story of 1969 fashions, the golds and avocado greens continue to be the staple and most popular colors evident in almost every line.

But to these hues the mills have added some "new" neutrals such as grey — yes, grey is back — sand beige, charcoal and pewter. These are neutrals with their own "personality" — distinctive tones not designed to dissolve into the background.

Jewel tone emeralds, reds and blues are showing up more often in a number of the color lines. Certainly, one new color that seems to pop up everywhere is yellow. I either a pale lemon or canary. Deep vibrant coffee brown is also making repeated appearances.

Even purple — an "in" carpet color about 10 years ago — is being revived by some manufacturers for 1969.

With a big boost from new printing techniques, multi-color patterns far abounding throughout the carpet selections. The trend toward small scale geometrics continue both in pile carpets and in the needlepunch lines created for use outdoors or indoors in kitchens, bathrooms, family rooms and you name it.

Several of the new needlepunch styles feature simulated plankboard effects while others offer brick and rush square designs.

In area rugs one new collection highlights "native" geometrics — motifs indigenous to different "Peoples" around the world. Other new eye-filling rug designs include large abstract florals, a river of gold, black and white swirls, bold modules of stripes and huge circles, and a round rug with a pattern that creates the optical illusion of rotating motion.

Indicating that the twain of carpet and hard surface can meet, one manufacturer has introduced coordinated lines of carpet and vinyl tile. Stylized floral medallion and hexagonal patterns are reproduced in matching or contrasting colors in both the carpet and tile.

The most delightful aspect of these savory assortments of new carpets and rugs is that they are offered in price ranges to fit all budgets. Well-styled, inspired design is available to all as the result of the American carpet industry's advances in technology.

Shags are rampant in the 1969 carpet and rug fashions such as in this luxurious wool carpet setting off the new Danish modern furniture that features blonde wood finishes. The mixture of gold, tangerine and pale green in the long "rya" type pile yarns is only one example of the many exciting multi-color combinations and solids available in the new shags which have taken the star role in carpet textures.

'Stall-to-Stall' Keeps Bossy Happy

Someone has discovered a new way to make a cow contented.

You give her "stall-to-stall" carpeting.

No kidding. There is a dairy farm in Vidalia, Georgia, with a barn housing 400 cows who can boast of having "summer green" carpeting in all of their feeding stalls, milking stations, alleyways and entrances.

The cows are contented and productive according to farmer Frank Conner. But the medical reason prompting his decision to carpet the barn was more physical than psychological.

Some months earlier, one of his prize Holsteins slipped fell on the wet cement floor and broke her hip. Mr. Conner decided then and there that these costly accidents must be prevented.

He thought: If carpet can provide non-skid safety in his home, why not his barn.

Mr. Conner finally decided on carpet a new indoor-outdoor grade of carpet. Made of polypropylene fibers, and designed for heavy-duty use outdoors, the carpet was made to be resistant to moisture, stains and fading, and would not rot or mildew.

From a wear standpoint, the carpet was put through an unusually severe test. With 400 cows, milked twice daily, a total of 3,200 hooves stomped over the pile every 24 hours. In a year, after more than one million hoof tests, the carpet has held up fine.

Cleaning the carpet is simple. It's just hosed down after each milking.

With the serene green carpet appealing to their esthetic tastes, the sure-footed cows at Conners' dairy farm could not be more contented.

At least they never hear the admonition: "Don't wipe your muddy feet on the carpet. Do you think you live in a barn?"

Always Remove Those Stains Quickly

New fibers, backings and types — are completely care-free.

Other technical advancements have produced carpets that are much easier to care for than in the past.

But no carpets — including the all-synthetic indoor-outdoor resist stains, but not indefinitely.

Even with kitchen carpet — rule your must never if you spill some food while serving a meal and you don't

Remove all spots on spilled liquids as soon as they occur. The new synthetic fibers at least quickly sponge up absorbing water-soluble liquids and scrape off solids.

But remember to clean up the stain the first chance you get.

Use the cleaning fluid in the same manner if the detergent solution does not bring out the stain.

One of the new "second generation" nylons is used as the pile fiber in this light-colored carpet providing the background for traditional furnishings. These new types of nylon carpets feature special soil-concealing properties and are well-suited for areas receiving heavy traffic.

Key Style Trends

Quick highlights of the 1969 carpet and rug fashions reveal:

Shag is the big texture of the year... subdued or thick and wild, shags are appearing in almost every line, even in outdoor carpets.

Shags show up in nylon, acrylics, wool and especially polyesters... Tangerine mixed with gold and sage, pink with gold, red and blue are only a few of the multi-color combinations bowing in these rya style textures.

Overall color trends in carpet show that the golds and avocado greens continue as most popular hues... but jewel-tone reds, blues, and emerald greens continue to gain, and yellow in pale lemon or canary is showing up everywhere... grey is making a comeback along with other neutrals such as sand beige, charcoal and pewter.

Spanish motifs show up in a number of new deeply carved or embossed textures, results of innovations in tufting equipment and new flocking processes.

Loans for Carpet

New homeowners are finding it easier than ever to finance their purchase of carpeting.

The cost of wall-to-wall carpeting may be included in home mortgages and certain long-term improvement loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration or the Veterans Administration.

Currently the ruling applies to living rooms, dining rooms, bedrooms, dressing rooms, dens, private offices and stairways in single-family homes. Other rules affect carpeting in corridors, entrances, stairways and elevators of apartment houses.

Carpet Fibers Chosen for Varied Functions

One of the toughest questions more fiber used and the denser resilience and soil resistance, carpet retailers have to answer it is packed in the pile, the other fibers may be used. If the order is for extra better the carpet. "Which carpet fiber is best?" # Pick Quality Carpet, Then the Padding

Once a homemaker has made her carpet buying decision, her immediate concern becomes: "What kind of padding should I buy?"

This should not be a great concern. Though the types of carpet cushion materials available today offer a wide choice, almost all will give satisfactory service.

Few people today will question the need for padding which gives such extra benefits as increased cushioning, reduced carpet wear, more luxury underfoot and a taut installation. Also, padding greatly multiplies the carpet's ability to absorb noise — air-borne as well as floor traffic and impact noises.

Avoid buying a pad that is too light, or one that "gives" too much under pressure. A cushion should be firm enough to support the carpet and soft enough to provide the desired comfort without being tiring underfoot.

WARNING: Choose carpet quality first. Don't skimp on the carpet and try to make up for it with an expensive cushion. Nobody sees the padding, but everybody notices a prematurely worn-out carpet.

Basic padding types are the felted, hair and fiber products and the sponge or foam rubber materials. The rubber cushions tend to be more bouncy underfoot, the felted pads somewhat firmer. It is the buyer's choice as to which underfoot feeling she likes best.

Sponge rubber pads come in two styles — some with a flat surface, others with a molded waffle or ripple design. The flat types are very resilient, and won't compress from heavy traffic or furniture. Sold by thicknesses, a one-quarter inch size is recommended for normal home traffic.

The waffled styles normally have a scrim fabric on one side to permit a smooth installation. These pads are very bouncy. Made in various weights, a 40 to 50-ounce weight is usually enough for home use.

Of the felted types, the all-hair padding is considered more durable and resilient. However, the hair-jute combinations, plain or rubberized, are good values. A clean, non-shedding, non-slip surface preferred for area and room size rugs.

The paisley pattern of this new carpet sets the mood of India in this combined living and sleeping room, ideally suited for a swinging bachelor. The deep-set pattern is the result of innovations in machinery design which has added new styling dimensions to tufted carpet. The easy-care features of the polypropylene pile yarns would be well appreciated by a bachelor as well.

An intricate mosaic pattern is printed on this dense, single-level looped nylon carpet ready for installation with its own sponge rubber cushion. This practical carpet is an excellent choice for family rooms and basement "rec" rooms.

The all-rubber products which resist mildewing, should be used in kitchens, bathrooms and other areas bound to be exposed to moisture or spilled liquids.

It all boils down to this, however. Choose a padding which gives you the feeling you want with your carpet. If you want more bounce to the ounce, you will have to pay slightly more. But regardless, concentrate on your carpet choice.

No More Static

The carpet industry is taking dead aim at those pesky static shocks you get when walking across a carpet during the cold, dry days of the year.

The problem disappears, of course, when the humidity is normal. That is why it's smart to use humidifiers or vaporizers in your home when the atmosphere gets very dry. (In many homes with central heating during the winter months, the humidity can be as low as the Sahara desert.)

However, carpet manufacturers have developed a variety of methods to reduce or virtually eliminate the static electricity problem.

Sales Hit $1.6 Billion

The wholesale dollar value of carpets produced in 1968 amounted to $1.6 billion as compared to $1.2 billion in 1967.

Carpet in Bath Practical Luxury

Here's the scene.

It's cold morning. You're luxuriating in a hot bath. Now, reluctantly, you have to get out of the bath and step on to the cold bathroom floor.

At a moment like this, have you ever thought how nice it would be if the floor were covered in a warm soft carpeting?

To this question, some people might reply that it would probably be nice to have a carpeted bathroom, but isn't it impractical?

A large and growing number of homemakers who have carpeted their bathrooms in recent years would disagree.

Beyond its pure creature comfort and decorative zing, carpet in a bathroom has several very practical benefits:

1. It prevents slips on a slick bathroom floor that could — and often do — lead to serious injuries with all that plumbing hardware around.

2. If for any reason you should trip and fall, the carpet would be softer to land on than the hard floor.

3. Dropped medicine and cosmetic bottles are less likely to shatter on a carpeted floor.

Well, now that you have rationalized carpeting for the bathroom, you can start thinking in terms of how great it will look coordinated with your wall colors or your terry cloth towels.

You can even think in terms of patterned carpet with carved or printed designs. As to texture, take your choice. Shag or plush pile are great for curling your toes into. But if you prefer tight-looped surfaces, you're entitled.

The indoor-outdoor type of carpeting would be a very practical choice for the bathroom. Constructed completely of moisture-resistant synthetic materials, they are often used around swimming pools, so why not the bathroom.

However, other types of carpeting have been used and have worked in bathrooms, including some made with natural materials. The important thing to remember is that bathroom carpet must be given time to dry and air out between showers and baths.

Though bathroom carpet can be installed the same as conventional carpeting, it can be fastened with double-backed tape if the carpet is heavy enough to stay in place without slipping. Being able to pick up the carpet periodically can be advantageous.

Maintenance of bathroom carpeting is quite simple. Regular vacuuming with periodic spot cleaning as needed should suffice. But never vacuum the carpet when it's wet.

Teener Given 15 to Life in Columbia Case

HUDSON, N.Y. (AP) — A youth who entered a guilty plea last week at the beginning of his trial, has been sentenced to 15 years to life for the murder of a teen-aged girl.

Michael J. Nero, 19, of near-by Greenport, received the sentence in the death last February of Jolane Marie Karic, 17, one of his classmates.

Police said Miss Karic, the sister of a state policeman, was last seen alive at a party Nero reportedly had not attended. Her stabbed and beaten body was later found beside a road.

Nero was arrested within a few hours of the discovery.

Sentence was passed by Columbia County Judge William F. Christiana.

Feraca said the boat has a plastic windshield front and is in good condition. The sergeant said the owner should produce a bill of sale when claiming the boat.

New Carpets for Kitchens Combine Style and Utility

The carpeted kitchen is becoming so commonplace in new homes, remodeled homes, redecorated homes and apartments, that one rarely hears the question: "Should I carpet my kitchen?"

Many homemakers have become convinced of the real advantages of a carpeted kitchen.

A carpet eliminates the need for frequent moppings, scraping and waxing.

It cuts down on the noise in what is normally a hard-surfaced room with cabinets, appliances, etc. It prevents slips, and cushions falls that may occur.

On the market today are number of carpets designed specifically for the kitchen. In addition, there are a great number of specialized "indoor" carpets created for family rooms, playrooms, laundry rooms and kitchens.

These carpets have commonly characteristics. They are made from "hydrophobic" or water resistant pile fibers and structural materials. The pile yarns are often polypropylene, olefin, or solution-dyed acrylic or nylon. Backing or structural materials are usually polypropylene.

Today's kitchen carpet can be tufted or woven of pile yarns that look exactly like conventional carpets. Or they can be needlepunched with a flat, felted surface. Or they can be flocked with a low, dense pile usually of nylon fibers flocked to an olefin needlepunch fabric or substrate.

If tufted or woven, a tight, dense, looped pile surface is recommended. With this type of texture, spills stay on the surface where they can be easily sponged off.

As to styling, the selection of kitchen carpet has expanded enormously since they were first marketed several years ago. The choice of colors, multi-color patterns and textures is almost as varied as carpets designed for other rooms in the house. In fact, certain provincial designs and special tile effects have been created primarily for use in kitchens.

Kitchen carpets are designed some care, spills should be water or detergent suds. For easy maintenance. But, as blotted up quickly, and the area greasy stains, apply a cleaning with any other floor, they need should be sponged with clear solvent.

KAPLANS

Kaplans and Lees are not married to any one fiber.

We're too careful for that. And so should you be.

You've heard the best carpet fiber is wool? Acrylic? Nylon? Polypropylene? They're all good. But some are better at one thing, some another.

So Lees, our feature carpet band, plays the field.

You might say they do the fiber shopping for you. From the head-swimming number of fibers available today, they pick the best. (Lees has a whole division just for that.)

If Lees puts a fiber into living room carpet designed for a big family, it's the right fiber. (When they say the fiber in a carpet will stand up to foyer traffic, it will.) The fiber they use in the kitchen won't be the same one they put in a formal dining room. It'll just be the fiber for the job. Every time.

Of course fiber alone is no guarantee of anything. If the pile is skimpy, if the back is weak, if the dye job is iffy, a carpet will be a failure no matter what it's made of.

That's why Lees is so careful. To get the best out off their fibers, they handle each one as if it's the only fiber in the world.

So if you want names to remember when you're carpet shopping — something to make you feel secure — don't make it fiber names. Make it Lees and Kaplan's the carpet people. You'll come out better.

Carpet in Pools

Putting carpet around a swimming pool is not news. But carpeting the INSIDE of the pool? That's news!

Well, a Montreal family is proud to display their installation of carpet on the bottom of their outdoor swimming pool—as well as around the pool deck.

Beyond the fact that it is a sure fire conversation piece, this might seem like a pretty far-out idea.

But the owner of the pool has advanced several practical reasons for this unique use of carpet.

Safer With Carpet

He says it is safer because with carpet you are less likely to slip and hurt yourself when wading at the shallow end. It eliminate stubbed toes on the pool steps, and no more scraping on the rough cement bottom. Besides, it looks better than bare concrete, he holds.

An outdoor carpet made of polypropylene was used, which was tested first for its resistance to mold, mildew, rot and the reaction of chlorine and other chemical agents used in the water.

The carpet was cemented right to the pool. A special adhesive was developed to hold the carpet to the pool bottom.

Not at Deep End

A total of 95 square yards of carpet was used in and around the 56 x 20 foot pool. Of this, 30 yards were needed for the bottom and 15 yards for the underwater stairs. Only half the bottom was carpeted—none being laid at the deep end where feet seldom touch.

Cleaning the carpet on the bottom, the owner finds, is simply a matter of using the regular pool vacuum cleaner. The poolside carpet can be run over with a carpet sweeper and hosed when needed.

Transit Carpets

Did you know that carpet is being used to help relieve traffic congestion?

It's a fact!

In San Francisco a completely new rapid transit system is now under construction. A combination of subways and surface routes, the Bay Area Rapid Transit System will offer ultra-modern passenger cars featuring thick, dense carpeting.

Be Sure To Use Vacuum

Don't be reluctant to use your vacuum cleaner, particularly on new carpet. It keeps it clean which will make it last longer and look fresher longer.

The best type of vacuum cleaner is one that combines good suction with a revolving agitator brush or bar.

You should give a light vacuuming every day to those parts of the house which get a lot of traffic and a thorough vacuuming to the whole house once a week.

Some new upright vacuum cleaners are featuring a "Shag" setting for cleaning the long shag-pile carpets so popular today. The high-pile setting on most cleaners, however, are capable of doing an excellent job on the shags, too.

If your cleaner seems to be losing its "zip," first check the disposable dust bag. Replace it if it is too full as this affects the suction.

Second, make sure some loose fluff has not clogged the brush. Third, check the motor belt. The brush can't rotate if the belt is broken or loose.

Fourth, take your vacuum cleaner to your appliance store or local cleaner repair specialist.

Yardage Up

United States carpet manufacturers produced about 448 million square yards of carpeting in 1968, a 25 per cent increase over 1967 figures.

Retirement Ceremonies Friday for Nevele Pride

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (AP) — Nevele Pride, the 4-year-old who has held ten world trotting records, will be honored at retirement ceremonies Friday at Monticello Raceway, scene of his 57th and final win in 67 outings.

The stallion, whose retirement was announced last week, is the second - or third largest money-winning trotter in harness racing history. He earned $871,738 to put him behind the French mare Roquepine's $956,161.61 winnings and gelding Sul-

Mac Lad's $885,095. The devaluation of the franc has placed Roquepine's winnings at $848,948.18.

Although Nevele Pride's owners live at nearby Ellenville, he raced infrequently at Monticello, where he won his last race by 6½ lengths on Sept. 27.

Trainer - Driver Stanley Dancer said Nevele Pride had raced the past two years with a hairline fracture of the left front pastern (above the hoof) and that "it took a lot out of him, we can't say how much."

Syndication rights of $3 million dollars for the stallion have been purchased by a group of 20 individuals, including owners Ben, Charles and Julius Slutsky and Louis Resnick.

The majority holder in the record high standardbred syndication is Norman S. Woolworth of New Canaan, Conn.

Woolworth, Dancer, Ben Slutsky, and Leon Greenberg, the president of Monticello Raceway, will speak at Nevele Pride's retirement ceremonies. The bay son of Star's Pride and Thankful will be paraded before the stands and led to the winner's circle where a blacksmith will remove the champion's shoes for the last time.

One shoe will be presented to Ben Slutsky, representing the family which bought Nevele Pride as a yearling in 1966. They sold one-half interest in the trotter to their neighbor Louis Resnick for $1 million last year.

Stanley Dancer, who bought Nevele Pride for the Slutskys, and schooled and drove him through his career, will receive another.

A third shoe will go to groom Hans Neilson and the fourth to Philip Pines, the curator of the Trotting Hall of Fame at Goshen, N.Y.

After the speeches, Nevele Pride will circle the course in a van with a window so that he may see and hear the tribute paid a horse whose name was synonymous with winning.

After the ceremonies, Nevele Pride will be shipped to Stoner Creek Stud at Paris, Ky.

Oh Gee! Tommy Agee Done Them In!

CHARLES J. TIANO,
Sports Editor

Tommy Agee stole five runs, the Mets scored five and that was the story this incredible Tuesday after at Shea Stadium.

By 3:30 p.m., the breezes off Flushing Bay were dropping the mercury as low as the spirits in the Baltimore Oriole dressing room.

The Orioles aren't facing another ball club. They're playing against destiny and it doesn't look like they beat it. They ought to pack it in and leave town immediately to spare themselves further embarrassment.

The Met partisans cheered the new legend when Agee led off the Mets seventh, moment after that spectacular bases-loaded catch against Paul Blair.

Tab Blair as the meanest man in the town after trying to put down Tommy's two phenomenal stabs. If they were "contrived" as Blair hinted, that's the best acting we've ever seen in a ball park.

Fastest Pitcher.

Gary Gentry flashed the fastest ball to date in the series. Jim Palmer, rated one of the bullet throwers in the American League, was caught without his pancakes. The Orioles' 1966 World Series phenom must have left his fast one in the locker room, along with most of the Baltimore "power."

Gentry and Nolan Ryan have to be the finest pitching collaborators since Lefty Gomez and Johnny Murphy of the Old Yankees. Ryan bailed Gentry out in the finale against the Atlanta Braves and did it again Tuesday, with a large assist, of course, from OG Tommy Agee!

In military parlance, the Orioles, who are fast shedding their royal plumage, got two hits and two near-misses. The Mets picked up everything else.

Kranepool Cheered

Ed Kranepool's home run in the eighth inning made a lot of Kingstonians happy. And some just happened to be in the ball park — Bill Scully, John Scully and Jack Dawkins, the Old Timers president, who recalled Kranepool's appearance at an Old Timers Hall of Fame dinner right after he had received a $65,000 bonus.

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Barone, the Wiltywack Country Club restaurants, caught the action. So did Father James Keating of St. Joseph's. A good soul in front of the Shea Stadium entrance gave Father Keating a ticket just like that. The one the good padre already had reserved was put to good use. We can assure you of that.

KHS Wins, 4-1

KINGSTON scored were earned the hard way. Newburgh scored first as Constantino DeSousa took the ball and went the length of the field for an unassisted score at 2:30.

The locals came storming right back with Pat Nugent pushing one home after two cross-passes from Brian Williams and Larry Feeley. The score by Nugent came at 6:10.

Kingston tallied again in the first period at 9:50 as Feeley edged one by the Newburgh goalie on an assist from Ken Barton.

Both teams were scoreless in the second period, but Kingston got rolling again as Nugent scored his second goal of the day on an assist by Williams at 14:30. The final goal was scored in the fourth stanza as Vic Naklicki carried one home after an assist by Pete Helmrich and Nugent. The time of the final goal was 4:30.

"We have gotten by the first part of the season in good shape," said the coach. "However the rest of the year will be a lot harder. We are really running hot and the other teams will have no trouble getting themselves psyched up for us."

Mike Droulette, first across for Kingston in 13:39, took ninth place, as Coach Ken Wood's Statesmen suffered their second loss in three starts.

Other Coleman finishers were: Pat Harder (11), Don Tegeler (12) and Steve Peruso (15).

Does Brooks Robinson Have a Weakness? Just One!

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—There's always a way.

There was a way to beat Achilles and a way to beat Samson, and although you'll never get anybody to believe it, there's also a way to beat Brooks Robinson.

The fact that you have to do something of a magician to do it is besides the point. What counts is that there actually is ONE way of getting a ground ball past Brooks Robinson, quite possibly the finest fielding third baseman who ever pulled on a pair of baseball pants.

The way to do it is hit the ball to his right. Between him and the bag, Brooks eats up anything within a 50-mile radius of his left but the sure-handed, 32-year-old Baltimore beauty, the best defensive ballplayer around today, doesn't go to his right. Not much, anyway. He'll tell you so himself.

It's rather ironic that Brooks Robinson, one of the slowest runners on the Baltimore roster, may own the quickest reflexes of anyone on the club. He's not fast, but nobody has a greater range, particularly to his left.

You ask Robinson who he thinks is the best third baseman around and he keeps saying Clete Boyer. He means the heated battle for the lead five-year-old bay gelding by the wire in the second race, Meadow Ace, out of Countess Mountain Haven. However, the close photo indicated Lord Newport, driven by George Gilmour, as the winner of the Class C-3 ticket holders of number 3 on pace, in the time of 2:13.1. The

"They never pay me for my fielding," he laughed the other day, "only my hitting."

Harry Dalton, the man who pays him got wind of the remark and said: "He is kidding, isn't he?"

Robinson batted .234 this year; he flied somewhere around ten thousand ninety-nine. Anytime anybody asks him who had the most influence on his professional baseball career he pipes right up and says Paul Richards, his first manager with the Orioles, and now general manager with Atlanta.

Mighty M Plans Weekend Slate

MONTICELLO The Monticello Raceway, now in its final full week of racing, but with weekend racing on Friday and Saturday evenings—Oct. 24, 25, 31 and Nov. 1, honored the Hotel Lafayette of Suffren, N. Y., in its featured race.

The last Tuesday evening of racing at the Sullivan County oval, saw Gerard Mir take the featured fourth race trot in the time of 2:09.4 for his second and consecutive win. The Jamie Pinky gelding out of Pinky B. Bombs Away, took the lead third under the wire, returning nearest opponent, Junkman, by five lengths.

In 24 starts for the season, the eight-year-old brown gelding has a record of 6 wins, 7 seconds and 2 thirds, to bring his season earnings up to $7,131, and his lifetime earnings to $63,709. Leased by Howards M.G. Stables, Inc. of Prattville, N. Y., the John Gilmour trained and driven horse returned 7.40, 4.40 and 3.60 to his backers.

The Ralph Andersen trained and driven Junkman, was second time of 2:09.4 and $4.00; and Lone Shark, trained and driven by Stables of Quebec, Canada, was third under the wire, returning 4.60.

The chill in the air, typical of a fall evening, was certainly not indicated Tuesday night in the heated battle for the lead five-year-old bay gelding by the wire in the second race, Meadow Ace, out of Countess Mountain Haven. However, the close photo indicated Lord Newport, driven by George Gilmour, as the winner of the Class C-3 ticket holders of number 3 on pace, in the time of 2:13.1. The

Alleys Bowl For Heart

For the first time since the inception of the Bowling Tournament for Heart locally, all 14 bowling alleys in Columbia, Greene and Ulster Counties will participate in the popular yearly event, Dr. Alfred M. Feldshuh, President of the Mid-Hudson Heart Association, announced. And for the first time, too, sponsorship of the event has been expanded to include the major national bowling groups which include the National Bowling Council, the American Bowling Congress, official organization of the nation's male league bowlers and the Woman's International Bowling Congress, representing the nation's female bowlers.

Dick Cavett, television's newest personality, has been named National Chairman of Heart Bowling Week. Cavett follows Ed Sullivan, National Chairman in 1967 and 1968 and prior to that, Ray Bolger and George Gobel.

Entry fees received during Bowling Week which will be held November 10, 11, 12, 13, and 14, will be contributed by the lane owners to support programs of cardiovascular research, education and community service to cope with the nation's Number One health problem. Bowling is a sport dear to the American Heart Association as an activity which heart patients can engage in with the permission of their doctors.

Some 40 million bowlers who patronize the nation's approximately 9,000 establishments will become potential supporters of the slogan: "Bow! Strike Out Heart Disease." The nation's two major bowling equipment firms, the American Machine and Foundry Company and the Brunswick Corporation are also sponsoring the event.

Cavett will lead thousands of Heart Association volunteers in encouraging participation in this fine family sport. Bowling enthusiasts in the Columbia, Greene and Ulster County lanes are urged to look to their favorite bowling alleys for more information.

Local Stars Score Win

Pete Zeeh and Joe Hevesi captured the 1969 IBM doubles title with an impressive 6-1, 6-2 victory over John Aviles and Dick Smith. Hevesi's rocket-like return of service seemed to be the deciding factor in the win.

In gaining the finals, the champs defeated Bill Carr and Nat Bersky, 6-3, 6-0. After failing behind three games to love, Zeeh and Hevesi rallied for 12 straight games as they dumped their opponents.

Later in the day, Pete Zeeh won the singles crown by defeating Dick Smith in straight sets, 6-2, 6-2. Zeeh's excellent placement service and a strong backhand seemed to be too much for his opponent.

Zeeh's next tourney will be the Hudson Valley Indoor event at Hopewell Junction in December.

Simpson Okay For Next Tilt

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Doctors Monday gave rookie star O.J. Simpson a green light to play next Sunday when the Buffalo Bills visit the Oakland Raiders for an American Football League game.

Simpson was dumped on his head during the Bills' game at Houston Oct. 5 and sat out last Saturday night's game against Boston because of recurring minor headaches during the week.

An electro-encephalogram (brain wave) test conducted Monday showed the problem had cleared up completely and Simpson is ready for more action, the Bills said.

Dear Abby

On Breast Feeding

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to the lady who wanted to be a steeled her about to be adopted baby saddened me, altho it did not surprise me. You are hardly to be blamed when the majority of the medical men in the country, including obstetricians and pediatricians would also pooh pooh the idea.

Knowledge of the physiology of lactation and the factors which induce it are woefully lacking in the American medical education of today. There are "primitive societies" (civilization's arrogant adjective for peoples living more naturally than we do) who very often use the services of other women than a baby's natural mother to breastfeed a baby. In some groups, grandmothers, long past their reproductive years, will successfully suckle infants.

The La Leche league is far more sophisticated in its knowledge of nursing than the medical profession. More power to your correspondent. I applaud her maternal instinct and hope she makes the attempt to breastfeed her adopted child. It can be done.

MRS. L. McAlbany, N. Y.

DEAR ABBY: I have had five children, and I nursed only the first one, and that was enough for me!

It wasn't my idea. It was my mother-in-law's. She convinced me that it was a "sin" to put my baby on the bottle, so I went along with her theory to keep peace in the family as we were living with her at the time. I finally had to quit when my 22-month-old "baby" cut a full set of teeth on me. "MOTHER OF FIVE," EL CENTRO CAL.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell that mother-to-be who is so eager to breastfeed her baby that if she's going to all that trouble because she thinks it will be better for the baby, she shouldn't kid herself.

I have had four children. I bottle fed the first two and breastfed the last two. All four are equally healthy. It made no difference in their teeth. In fact, the only child who did NOT have to wear bands on his teeth happened to be a bottle baby.

Also, my two breastfed children did not enjoy any "closer" relationships with me than anything else in LOVE, and they all got plenty of that.

TOW OF EACH: VALDOSTA, GA.

DEAR ABBY: From my own personal experience, I can say that bottle babies are healthier.

I nursed my first baby and had nothing but trouble. When I was nervous and fretful, my baby would become nervous and fretful. Every little emotional upset would promptly be transmitted to my baby thru my milk. Also breastfeeding seemed to drain me of all my energy.

My next three babies were on the bottle immediately, and they were healthier in every way than my first one. And I had a lot more pep, too.

MRS. G., ORANGEBURG, S.C.

DEAR ABBY: I nursed my adopted baby! It took a lot of patience on my part, but it was well worth the effort. I'm glad I didn't take my doctor's word for it when he told me to "forget it." I can thank the La Leche League! MRS. P.B.: L.A. CAL.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

AFTERWARD: (Q.) Steve and I have been going together for a year and three months. He says he wants to marry me more than anything else in the world and will wait as long as he has to. He is 17 and I'm 16, though, so we don't plan to get married for a few years.

When I give in to him his attitude toward me changes and he acts as if he could care less about me. It's as if he got what he wanted, so he doesn't have to be nice to me any more. Do you think that means anything?—Desperate in Bridgeport, Conn.

(A.) Yes, it means a lot. It is the nature of the male to turn his mind to other matters. Steve is acting natural.

If you were 24 and he were 25 and you were married, you'd understand. Steve would have to get a night's sleep and he'd have to make a living. You'd have other things to keep you busy, too.

But in a dating situation the things going on regularly between you and him are hard to handle. After you give in, there's nothing bigger or more exciting to go on to, so Steve gets bored.

I have a feeling that the only thing for you is to say good-bye to Steve and let him go. You've given him too much too soon, and if you try to change the pattern now, he'll leave anyway.

With the next boy, remember that a girl who gives in too readily is not the girl a boy usually gives his heart to.

WRAP: (Q.) I'm going to a dance. Is it OK to wear a white mohair sweater with my pink formal?—K. in Dearborn, Mich.

(A.) Sweaters don't look very good with formals. In fact, they look a little skimpy. A light jacket, coat, or stole would be better.

This Starlet Is Different

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The Hollywood starlet is a disappearing institution. Times have changed. Young actresses today are more likely to sound off on Vietnam or the pill, or boast of how they are defying respectability with open love affairs. In short, they are very, very dull. The most beautiful starlet I ever met was Sandra Giles. She was the acknowledged queen of the field. She looked like a softer, more tasteful Jayne Mansfield, of more sensible proportions. And she was a lovely young woman, beautiful, beautiful starlet, she has become a beautiful woman.

She didn't go the route that others go: The crummy bohemian pad in the Hollywood Hills or thereabouts. She lives in a comfortable, spacious apartment in an elegant area near UCLA's campus. Her clothes and makeup bear the touch of the town's more stylish shops. She looks like a young society Show, among others.

Recently she was set for your life, there's no use living roles in ABC-TV's "The FBI" it, she said. "I don't go out and 'Land of the Giants,' and much now except for a few did a movie with Raquel Welch called 'Flareup.' And I was at night. It takes a lot of wondering how she had turned discipline."

The famous Italian team consisted of three pairs. Each pair played its own specialized system, so that the opposition had to contend with three systems, not one. The Dallas Aces have adopted the same principle. Bob Hamman and Mike Lawrence play an old-fashioned Standard American. Billy Eisenberg and Bobby Goldman play a modern Standard American, based on five-card majors. Jim Jacoby and Bobby Wolff play the Orange Club, which is based on the Blue Team Club, as played by Garozzo and Forquet of the famed Italian team. In the Orange Club, the opening club shows at least 17 points in high cards but, in general, the first response shows ace, king values and not points. An ace counts as two values and a king as one. The diamond response is negative. One heart shows at least six high-card points and denies three ace-king values. The one-heart response is forcing to two no-trump.

Other responses are forcing to game and show the exact ace-king values. One spade shows three (an ace and king or three kings); one no-trump shows four (two aces, an ace and two kings or four kings); clubs show five, etc.

This immediate showing of aces and kings frequently makes slam bidding a lead-pipe cinch. Thus, today's hand gets to seven no-trump in three bids. North knows that the one no-trump response has shown four kings and he can count 13 tricks. Of course, any pair should reach this contract, the Orange Club just makes it particularly simple. A Silent Protest on Patrol

Few GIs in Viet Wear Those Black Bands

SAIGON (AP) — A few American troops in Vietnam silently protested against the war today, wearing black arm bands while on combat patrol to show sympathy with the Moratorium Day protest in the United States.

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, commander of U.S. forces Vietnam, said he did not think the protest in the United States would make any difference on the battlefield in Vietnam.

"We've got our job to do here and that's what we're doing," Abrams told newsmen after a delegation from Mississippi presented him a resolution by their legislature supporting American forces in Vietnam.

Associated Press photographer Charles Ryan, on patrol south of Da Nang with a platoon from the U.S. Americal Division, said about half of the 30 troops were wearing black arm bands.

"I'm wearing it to show that I sympathize with the antiwar demonstration back home," said the platoon leader, 1st Lt. Jesse Rosen of New York City. "It's just my way of silently protesting. Personally, I think the demonstrating should go on until President Nixon gets the idea that every American should be pulled out of here now."

Ryan reported that the platoon killed two Viet Cong, including a woman armed with a Chinese rifle, and that four of the Americans were wounded by booby traps.

A spokesman for the Americal Division said the protest was being investigated and he didn't know yet whether any disciplinary action would be taken against Rosen.

President Nguyen Van Thieu said in a statement that the antiwar demonstrations could prolong the war if they encouraged the enemy to wait for more concessions. Some members of the South Vietnamese House of Representatives called for a full-scale legislative debate on the demonstrations.

Twenty American civilians working in the country marched to the U.S. Embassy in Saigon with a petition calling for the immediate withdrawal of all American troops.

U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker met four of the demonstrators inside the embassy while the rest stood outside in a silent "vigil" for those killed in Vietnam. Social worker Leo Dorsey of Scranton Pa., said Bunker agreed to transmit their one-paragraph petition to President Nixon.

The petition was signed by 32 civilians, most of them working for religious and social organizations. The statement said:

"As millions of Americans today express their opposition to the war in Vietnam, we who work here wish to add our voices to theirs. We know the suffering of the Vietnamese people. We say this war must stop. We call for the immediate withdrawal of all American troops."

About an hour later, Lt. Gov. Charles Sullivan of Mississippi presented the legislative resolution to Abrams. It praised American forces in Southeast Asia for performing their duty "in the highest tradition of their country" despite "limitations and restrictive policies that have placed them in difficult and sometimes intolerable circumstances."

In advance of the Moratorium Day protest, the Americal Division honored its war dead with the dedication of a memorial crucifix given anonymously by the widow and mother of one of its soldiers killed in Vietnam.

Maj. Gen. Lloyd B. Ramsey, the division commander attended the brief ceremony and Mass Tuesday at the division's chapel in Chu Lai, 50 miles south of Da Nang.

The crucifix came from Assisi, Italy, birthplace of St. Francis of Assisi. The division chaplain, Lt. Col. James E. Shaw of Boone, Iowa, dedicated it "to the greater honor and glory of God in memory of all Americal Division soldiers who have sacrificed their lives in the Republic of Vietnam."

Meanwhile, the lull in the war continued, with only light, scattered actions and rocket and mortar attacks reported. For the second night U.S. B52 bombers made heavy attacks on bases of the Viet Cong 5th Division along the Cambodian border, dropping nearly 1,000 tons of bombs.

MASS FUNERAL — Women cry during mass funeral, in Hue, South Vietnam, Tuesday, for persons killed by the Communists in the 1968 Tet offensive. South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu attended the ceremony. Commenting on the anti-war demonstrations scheduled across the U. S. today, Thieu said the dissenters represented a minority of American opinion. (UPI CABLEPHOTO).

Agnew, Scott on War Moratorium - - Communists Already Exploiting It

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and GOP Senate Leader Hugh Scott, both speaking with White House blessings, say the Communists already are exploiting today's Vietnam moratorium movement.

And Sen. Gordon Allott of Colorado, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, linked the demonstrations to left wing groups and a "world peace conference" in East Berlin last June 25.

The vice president called upon leaders of the moratorium to repudiate a letter of support from Hanoi.

Agnew said the letter from Pham Van Dong, premier of North Vietnam, was "a shocking intrusion into the affairs of the American people by an enemy."

Scott got a copy of the letter from Bryce Harlow, President Nixon's chief congressional liaison man. The Pennsylvania Senator said he was sure all Americans, including the demonstrators, would resent Hanoi's message.

Allott would not disclose the source of his allegations, but he said "the basic strategy" for today's demonstration was shaped at a world peace conference in East Berlin. "That particular conference was Communist oriented," Allott said.

Although Allott said moratorium organizers were at that meeting, he named no one.

He also said the Socialist Workers party, the Progressive Labor party, the Youth International party and the Students for a Democratic Society were involved in initial planning of the moratorium.

"They're on the extreme liberal end of our spectrum," Allott said.

Scott said he knew nothing of the Allott charges, adding "I assume that the moratorium is an honest, peaceful expression of dissent."

This was in line with a statement by President Nixon in a letter Monday to a college student. "On Oct. 15, I understand many will simply be saying: 'I am for peace.' I ardently join with all Americans in working toward that goal," the President said.

Scott distributed copies of a Hanoi letter urging on the demonstrators.

"May your fall offensive succeed splendidly," the North Vietnamese premier wrote. The letter repeated the communist demand for total U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam.

"The Vietnamese and world people fully approve of and enthusiastically acclaim your just struggle," said Pham Van Dong.

Scott said the letter indicates Hanoi feels it is gaining because of the protests. He said North Vietnam "is already misreading the demonstration and seeking to exploit it."

"The dissent is proper," Scott said. "People have a right to do it."

But at the same time, he said he was warning in advance that the communists would capitalize on the protests.

Movement—Wide Coverage

By United Press International

The Vietnam moratorium today drew wide coverage in the world's press, a sympathetic response from Hanoi leaders and some overseas participation.

In Saigon, U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker received five persons who delivered a petition supporting the moratorium and told them immediate withdrawal of American troops would lengthen not shorten the war.

Several antiwar demonstrations were planned in Paris by American student groups and the French Young Communist League. A U.S. Embassy official agreed to meet the students to receive a statement and petition.

In Rome, some members of the 300-member student body at the Loyola University of Chicago's European branch said they would boycott classes today and later hold a candlelight memorial service honoring Vietnam War dead.

In London, about 50 members of parliament introduced a motion Tuesday night calling on the British government to withdraw any U.S. support connected with the war. The members, all — of the ruling Labor party, urged full support of the antiwar protests.

Foreign newspapers gave prominent display to news of the protests and many commented on them editorially. The Soviet news agency Tass reported on an antiwar demonstration near the U.S. Capitol in Washington as well as in other cities.

In Tokyo, about 20 Americans wearing black arm bands marched in front of the U.S. Embassy in sympathy with the

Soviet Effort Gets Bigger As the Cosmonauts Whirl

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's biggest week in space got even bigger Tuesday with the opening of a new program of solar research, keyed to an unmanned satellite, while the three manned spaceships sent up earlier continued their troika flight.

The Soviets apparently are carrying out two unrelated space operations simultaneously, and one of them—the three-ship manned flight—is among the most complicated operations ever undertaken.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the group flight of Soyuz 6, Soyuz 7 and Soyuz 8 "continues successfully" and the seven cosmonauts "feel fine." There was also the usual report of morning exercises, medical checkup and checking of instruments.

The announcement said the day's schedule called for "observations of separate regions of the earth's surface in mountainous areas, to watch the distribution of cloud and vortex formations over the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, to explore the reflecting factor of tracts of forest and desert regions."

But once again there was no word on plans to link up and weld together at least two of the spacecraft, the exercise in construction of a space platform that is believed to be the chief purpose of the flight.

Tass in another report late Tuesday dubbed the Soyuz crews "cosmonaut-assemblymen" and stressed the importance of their space welding tasks, which it noted would be extremely difficult because weightlessness in space restricts even the simplest movements.

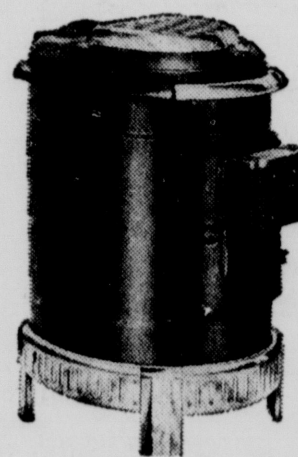

"The assembly of space constructions, their repair and other work will necessitate the joining of metals," Tass said. "To fulfill these jobs, the cosmonaut-assemblyman must stay outside the ship for long periods of time."

Tass said different welding methods will be used, including "electronic beam or plasma arc," which would give the space welders "the possibility of using a single instrument to both join metals and cut them."

Meanwhile, on Tuesday the Russians sent up a new unmanned satellite, Interkosmos 1, and said it would be used by radio observatories of East European Communist countries for a large-scale probe into the mysteries of the sun.

Bishop Sheen Resigns As Rochester Head

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (UPI) — Bishop Fulton J. Sheen announced his resignation today as head of the Rochester Roman Catholic Diocese.

At the Vatican City, Pope Paul VI said Sheen asked to be relieved of his duties because of his age. The pontiff transferred Sheen to the honorary post of titular bishop of Newport.

Sheen was perhaps best known for his prime time television programs in the 1950's.

The diocesan office, at the same time, said Pope Paul VI had appointed as Sheen's successor Msgr. Joseph L. Hogan, 53, pastor of St. Margaret Mercy Church in Rochester.

Only last month Sheen said he had no intention of resigning, although he was 75-years-old in May.

Sheen gave no immediate reason for his action, but called a news conference for later in the morning.

Sheen observed his 50th anniversary as a priest in September with a congratulatory message from the Pope emphasizing "the useful pastoral activity," he had carried out in the Rochester area.

He avoided a public celebration of the anniversary, but was surprised by about 160 friends with an impromptu champagne party and four-tiered white cake capped with a bishop's mitre.
